THE PRESIDENT ON THE ELECTION.

He Never Doubted That the Country Would Stand By the Old Flag—The Rally of Young Men.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President McKinley today expressed his views of the recent campaign and election. Those who called upon him found in him no exultation or exaltation from the personal point of view. Highly satisfactory as the result of the election has been from that standpoint, in these days immediately following the victory he thinks much more of the great responsibility which the people of the nation have again put upon him. In the consciousness of this responsibility the President has a keen realization of the demands of the work which he has been set to do. But it is his hope that he will have the strength and the wisdom to justify the confidence which has been placed in him.

The President expresses warm gratitude to those Democrats who supported the Republican ticket. He believes the number of such Democrats this year was greater than in 1896. There may not have been so many of the leaders as four years ago, but the best leaders that the Democracy has were with the Republicans this time as before. More of the rank and file of the party supported the Republican ticket than in 1896.

"Battalions of patriots of all parties marched to the polls and supported the government and the flag," is one of the President's sentences.

Apart from a popular satisfaction with our present prosperity and prevalent fear that a change would be disastrous, the President believes that the issue which brought the greatest strength to his party was the Philippine question. He had himself sounded public opinion on that issue during his tour of the West, and he never had the slightest doubt that the country would vote to support the American policy in the Far East.

"Majorities rise with the flag. It is in the blood of the American people to rally about the party which carries the colors under fire." The President believes the attacks which Democracy leaders made upon the government in the Philippines and upon the brave men who risked their lives in carrying out the government policy there, brought more votes to the Republican side than any other single thing. This was particularly true of the young voters. The President has been informed that never before did the Republican party have the support of so many first voters—all the Republican first voters and many Democratic first voters.

"It is a splendid sign for the country when the young men rally about the government, subordinating all other considerations to the patriotic impulses," he says.

During the campaign nothing gave the President so much pain, nothing so tempted him to break his rule of silence and to speak out, as the effort which was made to poison the minds of the young men of the country; to convince them that they had no future; that they were being enslaved. On this point President McKinley speaks with impressive earnestness.

The President was highly pleased today upon learning that his majority was not only safe but unexpectedly large in Nebraska. His satisfaction was not due to the fact that this is the home State of his opponent, of whom he speaks in a most kindly and considerate way, but because the addition of Nebraska to the Republican column gives the Republican party a clean sweep of the great industrial and agricultural North, with the exception of four silver-mining States in the Rocky Mountains.

FOR LATIN UNITY

Secret Sessions of the Spanish-American Congress to Begin at the Spanish Capital Today.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MADRID, Nov. 11.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The secret sessions of the Spanish-American Congress will begin tomorrow. They will be devoted to a study of various propositions for the development of the commercial relations between Spain and Latin-America.

The press today warmly welcomes the delegates in language which is circumspect, showing no hostility toward the United States, but upholding the necessity of the unity of the Latin family in America.

At yesterday's session of the Congress Señor Sierra, the delegate from Mexico, emphatically disclaimed the idea that there was incompatibility between the present Congress and the one that would be held in Mexico in October of next year for the purpose of discussing customs duties among all the American nations. He expressed the hope that the two Congresses would result in benefit, not only to all the nations in the Western Hemisphere, but to all humanity as well, adding that universal blessings would follow if compulsory arbitration for differences between nations should result.

FREIGHT AGENT RESIGNS.

SALT LAKE, Nov. 11.—S. J. Henry, well known throughout western railroad circles, has resigned as general freight agent of the Rio Grande Western. He has been here four years.

EIGHT PEOPLE KILLED.

Wreck at a French Railway Station Due to a Collision—Fifteen People Injured.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PARIS, Nov. 12.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Eight persons were killed and fifteen injured in a collision between a suburban train and an express train yesterday morning at Choisey Leroi.

The suburban train was entering the station to allow the express to pass, and the accident occurred then, the suburban train being telescoped. The wreck was complete, and the line was blocked for hours.

GREAT DEAL IN PROSPECT.

Three Steamship Lines Figure in Supposed Negotiations. Affects Subsidy.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Indications of an impending steamship deal continue to be shown in Stock Exchange transactions, and shipping men are talking about the probability of the great consolidation which may be accomplished in the near future. Officers of the Atlantic Transport Company, the headquarters of which are in this city, give no information about the deal, and President Baker has said there is nothing in the report.

If this company figures in the deal, it appears probable its negotiations will be conducted through the banking house of Alexander, Brown & Sons, as Brown is a director in the Atlantic Transport line. The Leyland line, which is a big company, having thirty-four vessels, runs steamers to Boston, and it appears probable that its managers have become interested in the recent negotiations. Closely concerned with F. Leyland & Co., who operate this fleet, are R. W. Leyland & Co., with fifteen ships, and Furness, Withy & Co., who have nine.

Just how far-reaching the consolidation scheme may become is not yet apparent. Besides the Atlantic Transport Company, the Pacific Mail and Red Star lines are mentioned in connection with it. The Atlantic Transport line has seventeen vessels in the service and six building; the Red Star has twelve ships and the Pacific Mail has seventeen steamers, seven of which are on the Panama line, two on the Panama-Mexico line, two on the Central American line, three on the Japan and China line, and three reserve ships. The other companies operate on the Atlantic between America and Europe.

In shipping circles it is thought that if the deal is completed, a great effort will be made to get the Ship Subsidy Bill through the next Congress.

TAMING OF MOST.

Chicago Anarchists Display the Stars and Stripes With Their Red Flag and Talk Small.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Herr Most, with his fierceness subdued to gentleness, was the orator here tonight at the Thirteenth anniversary of the execution of anarchists Parsons, Spies, Fischer, and Engel. The meeting was held in Central Music Hall. The place was free of uniformed policemen, but two city detectives stood on the edge of the crowd in the lobby. A few years ago, police interference with the speakers was of frequent occurrence at the annual celebration.

Except for the notable increase in the number of attendants and softening of the language used, the meeting differed from the previous annual gatherings only in that Mrs. Lucy Parsons was conspicuous by her absence, and that a big United States flag was displayed with the red flag used in the decoration of the stage.

SEA'S FURY BROKE IT.

The Monticello an Easy Victim.

Twenty-Five of the Dead Recovered.

Thirty-Six Persons Supposed to Have Been Aboard.

Stewardess and Three Men the Sole Survivors—Two Women Among the Dead.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

YARMOUTH (N. S.) Nov. 11.—The shore of this country for ten miles east and west is strewn with the wreckage of the hull and cargo of the steamer City of Monticello, which foundered Saturday morning, and twenty-five bodies of victims of the disaster have been recovered from the sea, which is still raging with terrific fury.

Many people have assembled at Rockville, near where the first body came ashore, and numerous relatives of members of the crew, who nearly all belonged to points on this coast, have arrived to identify the dead.

The bodies were arranged in a room in the public hall, and the Coroner, who held an inquest, gave a decision of accidental drowning. All the bodies are terribly battered.

The first body was found at daylight, when the zinc lifeboat, which was supposed by the survivors of the first boat to have been swamped, was discovered on the shore. A few yards distant were the bodies of Mr. Eldridge, a passenger; Second Engineer Poole; Fripp, a traveler of St. John, N. B., and the body of a seaman. All four had lifebelts around them. At srort intervals along the beach eleven more bodies were found, making fifteen discovered up to noon today. They had all evidently come ashore in the lifeboat and were killed on striking the beach, not one escaping. The remains so far identified, in addition to the four enumerated above, are:

RUPERT OLIVE, purser of the steamer Prince Edward.
BAGGAGEMASTER WILSON.
DECKHANDS JOHNSON.
LEVI NICKERSON.
ROBERT NICKERSON.
VAN RENANBERG.
AUSTIN WICKENS.
JAMES COLT.
JOHN E. WHITEMORE.
STANLEY RINGER.
WINSLOW RINGER.
HARRY COPELAND and DAVID BENHAM.

The watches in the pockets in two of the men stopped at 12:45 and 12:25 o'clock, respectively.

The body of Capt. Harding of the Monticello was found at Picnic Point, encircled with a life belt and fully dressed. An unknown body, supposed to be that of a traveler for a western boot and shoe firm, has been found at the same place, with the bodies of Elsie McDonald and Second Officer Murphy, recovered yesterday. Of the members of the crew whose bodies were secured, Copeland and Benham were not known to be on board until their bodies were identified. They were not on the ship's articles, having joined for the trip only.

Several other bodies are still unidentified. One body was recognized this evening as that of John Richmond of Sussex, N. B., a traveler for a boot and shoe firm. He was not before known to have been a passenger. This swells the known death roll to thirty-two. Benham took the place of Whittemore, previously reported lost. Copeland was also a substitute, but for whom it is not known.

It is a coincidence that the ship Peter Stewart was wrecked off this shore a few years ago in the month of July, and a boatload of men came in where the Monticello's boat was found. Half of the men were dead before the boat touched the land, and many believe the same is true of those in the Monticello's boat. The fury of the surf is appalling in this region.

The body of O. N. Coleman, another commercial traveler, who was not previously known to have been on board the Monticello, has been washed ashore and identified. He represented a Hamilton, Ont., jewelry firm, and carried samples worth $20,000. One trunk has been found. Wreckage of all kinds litters the shore, boxes, barrels, pieces of the ship's boats and parts of the superstructure of the steamer.

James Ball, a merchant of Yarmouth, who was supposed to have been on board, is safe, having missed the steamer in St. Johns.

Rupert Olive was crossing the bay from St. Johns to Yarmouth to rejoin his own steamer.

Chief Steward Hopkins of the steamer Yarmouth perished, having taken his brother's place for one trip.

Swen Johnson was taking [illegible] Cook's place as quartermaster, and Fred Vanenberg was acting as substitute cook for his father. The absentees were off to vote at the elections, and to this circumstance they owe their lives.

No trace of more than three women having been on board the Monticello can be obtained. They were placed in the first boat. One of them, Stewardess Kate Smith, is one of the few survivors, and she is too ill to make a statement.

Elsie McDonald was drowned in the surf. Her body has been recovered. The third woman, named Lawrence, was colored. Her body was seen in the breakers this afternoon, but could not be reached.

Some difficulty has been encountered in figuring out the total loss of life, as a number of passengers joined the Monticello at St. John without first registering at the booking office. They bought their tickets on board. A revised list of the members of the crew, prepared at the head office of the Yarmouth Steamship Company here shows that the officers and crew numbered twenty-eight. The total number of people who were on board is now placed at thirty-six.

The four survivors are Capt. Smith, who was a passenger; Third Officer Fleming, Quartermaster Wilson and Stewardess Smith.

The three men saved agree that the cause of the disaster was briefly this: the steamer was pounded for hours by sea and gale. She sprang a leak and filled; became unmanageable, broke apart and foundered.

The sea is not remembered to have been so heavy on this coast for many years.

WORLD'S FAIR FOR BOSTON.

Pork-and-Bean-opolis Has a Scheme for a Great Exposition.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A world's fair that is to be the greatest ever held in the eastern part of this country is planned for Boston in 1903. Active work on the enterprise will begin this week, plans having been in preparation ever since 1895. At that time an organization was effected, and it was intended to hold the exposition in 1900, but the war with Spain made necessary a postponement.

The fair will include exhibits of all articles and products known to civilization, an international musical festival and an international military and naval display.

The exposition park is to be located along the water front, with an area of 300 acres. There will be twenty-five buildings, administrative, industrial, educational, mechanical and agricultural; a tower of chimes nearly one thousand feet in height, and arrangements for the reception and entertainment of various naval and military deputations. The tower of bells will be a majestic, sky-reaching tower, with tiers of bells and chimes, one above the other, from all bell foundries throughout the world, each representing a different manufacturer and nation. Electric illuminations will light the tower from base to top, and on the peak will be a mammoth arc and searchlights for every warship in the bay and for the military camp.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Differences Between the Board of Trade and the Telegraph Companies Likely to Be Settled Today.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—There is every probability that the long-standing differences between the Board of Trade and the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies will be settled tomorrow at a conference to be held in the office of President Warren in the Board of Trade rooms. R. J. Nally, acting for the Postal, and R. C. Clowry, representing the Western Union, last week forwarded to the head offices in New York a proposition outlining a basis of settlement, and this has been agreed to in its entirety. It is believed the concessions will be met in a liberal spirit by the board, and the whole trouble will be quickly adjusted.

The most important features of the present stand of the telegraph companies are the determination not to abandon the local field to the Cleveland Telegraph Company and the demand that the Board of Trade shall designate what firms shall be prepared to defend any action that may be brought if the telegraph companies refuse to transmit quotations to such houses.

KEEPING UP THE ARMY.

Senator Proctor Talks of Reduction.

Too Small a Force Will Not Do.

Legislation for Congress—Lo and His Needs—Not Dying Out.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Senator Proctor of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs and Adjt.-Gen. Corbin held an informal conference with the President yesterday, relative to legislation to be asked of Congress in connection with the proposed increase of the regular army.

"Under the existing law," said Senator Proctor, at the conclusion of the conference, "the present strength of the army, 65,000 regulars and 35,000 volunteers, will be reduced on the first day of next July to 27,000 regulars. This is an absurdly small number, and Congress will be asked by the President to reorganize the army upon a larger basis.

"It will be impossible to keep any troops in the Philippines unless the army is increased, to say nothing of the garrisons for the forts in this country. My own judgment is that Congress will provide a regular army of about 55,000 or 60,000 men, with discretion to the President to raise the total to 100,000 if he finds the larger number necessary. I have no doubt that this legislation will be enacted at the coming session."

NAVY'S FORCE NOT ADEQUATE.

Service Harmed Because of Lack of Officers—More Men Needed.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The startling statement is made in the report of Admiral Crowninshield, Chief of the Navigation Bureau, that the present personnel of the navy would form barely one-fourth of the total establishment necessary to fight a first-class European power. It barely sufficed for the Spanish war, and no longer can be considered, the report says, as an effective nucleus about which a larger establishment could be formed in case of war.

The admiral regards this need of the navy for officers and men as most urgent. He says that the bureau can point to many cases where the service is being harmed by lack of officers. The Naval Academy is suffering for want of instructors, and the present high standard of training cannot be maintained. Every bureau in the department is short of officers, and the service, the report predicts, soon will fall behind in the struggle, first for leaders, and then for quality, with the other services. The disability of the seagoing corps of officers has greatly increased since the Spanish war, and many of the best officers are being lost as a result of breaking down from overwork.

The admiral severely criticises the ineffective effort of Congress at the last session to meet immediate needs for officers by authorizing the employment of retired officers and recommends the immediate repeal of that act. He claims that the retired list, intended as the reward for faithful service, otherwise becomes a hardship and a punishment. The Personnel Act thus far has resulted in affording less officers than were on the active list before its passage, as, while authorizing an increase, it failed to provide the means therefor, so there are now 121 vacancies in the list of naval officers, when vacancies can be least afforded. Therefore it is recommended for the next ten years that appointments to the Naval Academy be doubled, the President and Representatives in Congress appointing two, instead of one, wherever authorized now, and in addition Senators be given the same privilege of appointment as Representatives.

Then, to meet future needs, it is recommended that whenever Congress authorizes an increase of vessels to the navy, it shall also provide in the same act for an increase of officers and men to man the ships. The report says that England, which this year lays down fifteen war vessels, voted an increase of 4340 officers and men to the naval establishment to man the ships, while Germany, which intends doubling her fleet in the next sixteen years, has provided in the same programme for increasing the personnel by 39 officers and 1697 men each year, until the total increase reaches 22,561.

It is declared that it is now impossible to man the vessels of our navy already constructed, with the present force, not to mention those building or authorized. Congress is urged to make any increase in the personnel immediately available.

The training system as now practiced in the navy is commended, and it is declared that by no other means could the navy secure the sailors necessary to man the fleet. Since the close of the Spanish war, the department has found that the resources heretofore depended upon to furnish seamen for the navy are no longer adequate. Only 237 seamen have enlisted for the first enlistment in the past year, so the department has been obliged to rely upon and develop the training squadron for landsmen, and now has about one thousand men under instruction, who, on the average, require about six months' training.

SOUTH ATLANTIC STATION.

Admiral Crowninshield regards it as most important commercially that we keep always a fair representation on the South Atlantic station, saying that in no part of the world are our vessels more cordially received, and nowhere can be traced direct benefits to trade more clearly than on this station. As to North Atlantic stations, regret is expressed that the important drills of the squadron are compelled to be often interrupted by attendance of the vessels political celebrations, which tend to demoralize the efficiency of the personnel.

One chapter deals at some length with the the history of the Asiatic station during the year, and the participation of the Navy and Marine Corps in the Chinese operations are set out in some detail. The report makes the point that the government should construct or acquire on the Asiatic station a dock of its own.

There were 2427 desertions from the navy and 86 deaths during the past fiscal year. The enlistments number 8123 from a total number of applicants of 40,854. Over 68 per cent. of the men in the navy are native-born, 19 per cent. are naturalized and 9 per cent. have declared intentions. Two per cent. of the landsmen now under training are native born.

Admiral Crowninshield finds that the Chesapeake is too small for the midshipmen, and asks that she be transferred to the training station at Newport and that another vessel be built for the cadets, to accommodate at least 300 besides her crew. Touching the Naval Academy, it is urged that no physical disqualifications of cadets shall be waived hereafter, as there has been a marked deterioration in the past ten years in the physical condition of the graduating cadets, owing to their abandonment of the vigorous "weeding-out" process, which has now fallen into disuse. It is also strongly urged that the two years' supplemental course at sea shall be abandoned. Finally, strong commendation is given to the superintendent's recommendation that the age limit for cadets upon admission shall be between the ages of 15 and 18, and that the course at the academy shall be four years.

Two additional training ships for apprentices at Newport are said to be urgently needed. The report urged continued training of the men in marksmanship. The admiral makes a strong point in his report of the necessity of naval barracks, to take the place of the present receiving ships, which he says are nothing more nor less than poorly-constructed, ill-ventilated, badly-lighted, unsanitary eating-houses. Congress is urged to authorize an expenditure of $600,000 for seamen's quarters at New York and at League Island, $100,000 to be made immediately available.

A mild reproof for Congress is contained in the closing paragraph of the report, which calls attention to the discouraging condition in which distinguished officers of the navy have been left by not receiving any formal recognition for their heroic services during the war with Spain. The report says the navy had no part in the unfortunate public controversy which followed upon the President's recommendation that certain officers should be promoted, and adds that thus far there has been no recognition by Congress, except of those who shared in the victory at Manila, and elsewhere in the war.

POOR LO'S NEEDS WELL SUPPLIED.

Commissioner Jones Would Have Able-Bodied Reds Care for Themselves.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The total expenditure by the government on account of the Indian service from March 4, 1789, up to, and including July 30, 1900, has been $268,258,217, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Indian Affairs William A. Jones. The expenditures for the fiscal year ended last July, amounted to $10,175,107. Of this amount, at least $2,920,000 was devoted to the cause of Indian education.

The report reviews the change in the system of the progress supplies, by which the supplies are shipped in open market by common carrier at tariff or better rates, and estimates that this saves 20 per cent. in cost.

Under the head of obstacles to self-support of Indians, the report deprecates the ration system, annuity payments and the leasing of allotments. The ration system, says the report, is the corollary of the reservation system. The Indian population of the United States is about 267,900, of which 45,270 receive a daily ration. The ration issued and its value vary according to the tribe. Nearly two-fifths of the number receiving rations, belong to the great Sioux nation. The ration has been gradually reduced, the past few years, in accordance with the policy of the Indian Bureau. If the Indians' claim for full rations as a right is conceded, the commissioner predicts that the time when they will be self-supporting, lies in the very distant future, if it comes at all.

A number of the Indians also are assisted by occasional issues, and at several agencies the old and indigent are provided for. These aggregate about 12,570. Altogether, there are 57,570 Indians receiving subsistence in some degree, exclusive of Indian children in boarding schools. The commissioner urges that the indiscriminate issue of rations should stop at once. The old and helpless, he says, should be provided for, but rations should be issued to the able-bodied only for labor, while those who have been educated in Indian schools should depend entirely on their own resources.

Annuities distributed last year aggregated $1,507,543, the per capita ranging from $255 down to 50 cents. The report says that large money payments to the Indians "are demoralizing in the extreme. They degrade the Indians and corrupt the whites they induce pauperism and scandal and crime; they nullify all the good effects of labor. Unscrupulous people induce the Indian to go into debt, and when the debt has accumulated and the Indian's credit is gone, pressure is brought to bear by the creditors upon the government to pay the Indian so that he can pay his honest debts. The state of things growing out of the surroundings at the agencies is a scandal and a disgrace. There is now in the treasury to the credit of the Indian tribes $33,315,955.09, drawing interest at the rate of 4 and 5 per cent., the annual interest amounting to $1,646,485.96. Besides this, several of the tribes have large incomes from leasing and other sources. It is a safe prediction that so long as these funds exist they will be the prey of designing people."

The report says: "The ultimate disposition of the Indian funds is a subject for the most serious consideration. In some cases they are small, and in others very large. With respect to the former, they can as a rule be paid out to the Indians with little if any evil consequences. With respect to the latter, their proper disposition is more difficult. It is admitted that great wealth is of weakness to any Indian tribe and productive of much evil. Two remedies have been suggested:

"First—The gradual extinction of these funds, setting aside a sufficient sum to maintain the reservation schools a definite period of years, say twenty-one, and then dividing the balance per capita and paying each member of the tribe at certain ages their share.

"Second—As a corollary to this, division of the land belonging to the tribe per capita. The remedy proposed would almost invariably immediately relegate the Indians to poverty, though the remote result might be for them to work to save themselves from actual want."

The general leasing of their allotments by the Indians to white men is denounced.

There were 250 Indian schools of all kinds conducted by the government and an increase of 1412 pupils in enrollment and 1142 in average attendance, shown over the previous year. About eight thousand of the 34,000 eligible school children are unprovided for. Compulsory education of the Indian children is strongly indorsed, and Congress is urged to authorize the commissioner to place every one of school age in some school. The selection of the school to be left largely to educated Indian parents.

The report controverts the commonly-accepted theory that by constant contact with the whites the extinction of the Indian is only a matter of time. It says it can be stated with a great degree of confidence that the Indian population of the United States has been very little diminished from the days of Columbus, Coronado, Raleigh, Capt. John Smith and other early explorers.

The first reliable Indian census was in 1870, and certainly since then the Indian population has been nearly stationary, whatever decrease there is being attributable to Indians becoming citizens. Reviewing Indian Territory affairs, the report says there are 50,000 children of white parents there who should have schools, and that thousands of these children thus deprived of education are growing up in vice and ignorance, already filling the United States jails at Muskogee and other points with youthful criminals. The cost of education will not be excessive, compared with results. School benefits also should be extended to the 4250 Choctaw freedmen. Government control of the schools in the Chickasaw nation is advocated.

EXPORTS OF PRODUCTS.

INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The monthly statement of the exports of domestic products, issued by the Bureau of Statistics, shows that during October the exports were as follows, comparisons being made with October, 1899:

Breadstuffs, $21,913,832, decrease $2,128,000; cattle and hogs, $2,892,351, increase $652,000; provisions, $13,934,320, decrease $714,000; cotton, $60,391,107, increase $32,043,000; mineral oils, $6,219,079, decrease $463,000; total for the month, $105,260,689, net increase $29,398,994. For the last ten months the total was $665,918,873, an increase, as compared with the corresponding period of 1899, of $82,055,000.

DON CARLOS PROTESTING.

Spanish Pretender Calls the Uprising in Catalonia Veritable Treason.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MADRID, Nov. 11.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Madrid papers publish a letter from Don Carlos addressed to the Carlist general, Moore, in which the Pretender protests against the present movement as "contrary to instructions" and characterizing the authors of the rising as "men without consciences."

"I shall never abandon my rights," says Don Carlos; "but at the same time, I don't wish to ruin Spain. I cannot forget the danger to the integrity of her territory from prolonged insurrection, because it would excite the ambitions of powers which are attentively following events in Spain. The Catalonia movement is veritable treason on the part of a few impatient and disciplined men."

FIFTY CARLISTS TAKEN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BARCELONA, Nov. 11.—The government troops have captured a band of fifty Carlists near Villa Franca del Panades, twenty-five miles west of Barcelona. They seized a quantity of arms and ammunition.

GYPSY GIRL'S CHANGED LOT.

Joseph Chambers's Stolen Child Restored to the San Diego Citizen.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPRINGFIELD (O.) Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joseph Chambers, a wealthy merchant of San Diego, Cal., has recovered his daughter Katie, who was stolen sixteen years ago from Bellefontaine, this State, by gypsies. The girl is now en route to San Diego to join her parent.

She had a vague remembrance of a former life and wrote a series of letters to try to discover her identity. One of these fell into the hands of Postmaster Zearing of Bellefontaine who remembered that Chambers, a former resident of the place, had a daughter stolen. He notified him, and investigation was made, and the girl was identified beyond a doubt as the long missing child. For a few months past the girl has been employed by J. B. Clotworthy of Aiken, S. C.

[THE CRISIS IN CHINA.]

HEAVY BILL TO SETTLE.

Six Hundred Millions for a Starter.

Powers Putting Screws on Chinese.

Humiliation of the Royal Blood Also Demanded—Russia Uneasy.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PEKING, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The ministers at a meeting on Thursday, made substantial progress in formulating demands that will be presented to the Chinese government. While the utmost secrecy is maintained regarding the actual nature of the demands, it is believed an agreement has practically been reached, and that if a draft of the demands has not already been handed to the allied governments it will be shortly. The ministers will hold another meeting November 12.

It is understood the demands are based on the French note, but differ therefrom in some respects, besides containing some additional demands. For instance, the French note made no mention of the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, the German Minister. The demands will insist that proper reparation be made for the murder, and that the Chinese perform a substantial act of humiliation to give satisfaction to the German government. It will be suggested that a prince of the royal blood proceed to Germany and humiliate himself before Emperor William.

It is understood that the ministers have discussed the question of indemnity. One suggestion was that China be compelled to pay for the actual damage done, and in addition, meet all the expenses of the war and the maintenance of the troops here. Altogether this would make a bill of $600,000,000 for China to settle.

Foreign supervision of the revenues and guarantees for the payment of the indemnity were discussed, as was also the question of opening the whole country to trade. The protection of missionaries was also under consideration, but it is not known whether this will be included in the demands.

COLOGNE GAZETTE OUTLINE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Following is the full text of the statement, evidently inspired, in the Cologne Gazette of Saturday, as to the understanding reached by the representatives of the powers in Peking regarding the Chinese settlement:

"Pour parleurs between the envoys in Peking for the purpose of agreeing upon the fundamentals for peace negotiations with the Chinese plenipotentiaries proceed favorably in the whole series of important points.

"An agreement has been reached between the powers, particularly regarding the punishment of the main culprits, the mandarins and princes; also regarding the witnessing of the execution of such punishments by representatives of the powers; also regarding the principle of paying damages to the several governments for the cost of the China expeditions, and for damages sustained by private persons and missions; also regarding the permanent stationing of sufficient guards for the Peking legations; also regarding the razing of the Taku forts, and finally, regarding the maintenance of secure and regular communication between Peking and the seashore.

"About a number of other demands put forth by separate powers, negotiations are still pending."

ONE IMPORTANT OMISSION.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—If, as reported in the Cologne Gazette, the powers have reached a definite understanding in regard to China, its terms, as stated, by that newspaper omit several features which have been a source of discussion among them. Probably the most important of these is the proposition to abolish the cumbersome office of the Tsung Li Yamen, or Board of Foreign Affairs, and place the duties of that body under the supervision of one person, who shall be directly responsible for the management of its affairs. This change has been urgently desired by our government and is believed to find a hearty second among all the powers.

Officials profess an unwillingness to discuss with any detail the existing state of the negotiations now in progress, and the impression prevails that if an agreement has been reached, it is incomplete, or partial. Nothing came from Minister Conger today.

Minister Wu said tonight that he had no information bearing on the movements of the imperial family. He was not disposed to credit the statements that the court intended to go to Sze Chuan province, further to the west, from where it is now, unless compelled to do so as a result of the military operations of the allies.

TERMS TOO HUMILIATING.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ROME, Nov. 12.—The Tribuna publishes the following from its Peking correspondent: "Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching have informed me that the demands of the powers for the punishment of Prince Tuan and the withdrawal from power of the Empress, are too humiliating to be accepted by the Chinese."

CLAWS OF THE BEAR.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times from Peking, Saturday, says that Li Hung Chang has not yet replied to Admiral Alexieff's invitation to resume the government of Manchuria under Russian protection. Russia will require the names of all officials to be submitted to her for approval. Her proposals are tantamount to military occupation, and every Chinaman realises that Manchuria is lost to China.

Increasing alarm is felt here at the spread of the insurrection in the southern provinces. No surprise will be caused if Japan intervenes. The trade and financial outlook is very gloomy.

"All the Russian troops here," says a dispatch to The Times from Tien-Tsin, dated November 9, "are being withdrawn."

SERIOUS FRICTION.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Nov. 12.—"Serious friction has been caused in the peace negotiations in Peking," says the Daily Mail's correspondent at Tien-Tsin, wiring November 9, "by Belgium, Denmark and Holland and Spain clamoring to have a locus standing in any important decisions. Russia and France have supported their claims, which are opposed by the powers. Belgium is especially importunate and intensely pro-Russian."

THREE OFFICIALS EXECUTED.

CONDEMNED BY THE ALLIES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PEKING, Nov. 10.—[By Asiatic Cable.] A profound impression was produced upon the natives at Pao Ting Fu by the execution there of the three officials, Tien Tung, provincial treasurer; Gen. Wei Shung Kong and Col. Kiu, who were condemned by the international court-martial as among those responsible for the massacres there. They were beheaded, and their heads were exposed on poles for a day before burial.

It is probable, despite discrepancies, that the foregoing officials are identical with those referred to in a dispatch to the Associated Press from Tien-Tsin, dated November 6, which said that Ting Yung, acting Viceroy of Chili; the Tartar general Kuewi Hang, and Col. Wang Chan Me were shot at Pao Ting Fu by order of the court-martial.

RUSSIA BECOMING RESTLESS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 11.—Russia is becoming increasingly restless on account of the strict course of the allies, particularly the Germans and British, toward the Chinese.

"Russia," says the Bourse Gazette, "will reap the hatred of foreigners which the Germans and British are sowing."

Official circles in St. Petersburg do not conceal their dissatisfaction over the recent execution of Pao Ting Fu officials.

MILLIONS IN WANT.

MURDERS OF MISSIONARIES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TACOMA, Nov. 11.—Oriental advices received by today's steamer state that from four to six million Chinese, north of Peking are in danger of starvation, their crops having been a total failure.

One million piculs of tribute rice were to be dispatched from Shanghai and distributed among these hungry hordes from Tien-tsin and Peking, but the military officials at Shanghai gave orders that no rice should be sent out f Central China. There is great danger that an immense swarm of robbers will be sent out of the famine district, as usually happens.

Many shipping disasters happened last month on the Asiatic coast. The steamer Matsunaye caught fire and sank in Esahi Bay. Her passengers were rescued in the nick of time. The steamer Tadotsu and bark Kawata collided near Yokohama, badly damaging both. The steamship Hokoshiu Maru was wrecked off the coast of Yishima Islands, both vessels and cargo becoming a total loss. The steamer Izangi Maru sank after striking a sunken rock near Osaka, and sixteen of her passengers were lost. The Japanese third-class coast defense vessel Vatsuragi, of 1500 tons, went ashore near Yishima, and before she could be towed off, was wrecked by a severe gale. A cruiser was sent to aid her, and succeeded in taking off the crew.

News has been received at Yokohama that eleven Belgian missionaries were murdered by bandits in Mongolia, last month.

ELECTION NEWS QUIETLY TAKEN.

Armed Insurgents Not Likely to Learn Bryan's Defeat for Some Time.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MANILA, Nov. 11.—[By Manila Cable.] The results of the elections in the United States have been quietly received here.

So far as the Filipinos are concerned, no noticeable change in the situation has resulted, nor is any likely to occur in the immediate future. They are for the greater part non-committal. News of the outcome will slowly work its way through the country to the armed insurgents, where the assurances of the leaders that Bryan would certainly be elected must be overcome.

Last week's scouting resulted in several minor engagements with what the official reports described as "small casualties," namely, four Americans killed and ten wounded.

MACABEBE ENTHUSIASM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MANILA, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The news of the Republican victory in the United States was received thankfully here. All the American and most of the Spanish newspapers were enthusiastic over the result. The Filipino papers refrained from making criticisms. There is no question but Americans and foreigners here experience a great feeling of relief over the decisiveness of the defeat of the Democratic policy. Merchants anticipate that the reëlection of President McKinley will result in stability and security here. The markets are already steadier.

The leading Americanistas, who are Filipnos accepting the American rule, and the Macabebes are extravagantly grateful. In the Macabebe town of Pampanga, the residents celebrated McKinley's success with a fiesta that lasted twenty-four hours, during which there was much speech-making and dancing.

President Taft and other members of the Philippine Commission are constantly in receipt of congratulatory messages. Various garrisons have organized celebrations in honor of the Republican victory.

OBITUARY.

Capt. George W. Jenkins.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—Capt. George W. Jenkins died at his home in this city today, aged 68 years. He went West overland to California with the gold-seekers of 1849. From 1860 to 1872 he was a Mississippi steamboat man. During the Civil War he was a captain under Admiral Porter, and at the siege of Vicksburg displayed conspicuous gallantry.

Capt. W. Y. Douglass.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—Capt. William Y. Douglass, who served on the San Francisco police force for nearly a half century, died today after a lingering illness. He became a member of the force December 18, 1856, and was retired in July, 1895.

FOR SPANISH IMMIGRATION.

HAVANA, Nov. 11.—The Havana papers are now generally commenting upon the action of the government in the matter of quarantining immigrants, and a movement is on foot among the Spaniards to form an association to work in conjunction with the government in encouraging immigration from Spain and the Canaries, and to provide for immigrants on their arrival.

"SUGAR-BEET" TRAIN WRECKED.

Open Switch Leads to a Collision and Fire—Six People Injured.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PUEBLO (Colo.) Nov. 11.—The Missouri Pacific passenger train which left here late last evening ran into an open switch at Sugar City, fifty-five miles east of Pueblo, and plunged into a freight caboose in which were four section men. The passenger engine and caboose telescoped and fell in a heap, which at once took fire, and all the woodwork was burned. Engineer Huckett jumped, but Fireman Nelson remained on the locomotive and was pulled out of the wreck unconscious. Casualties were as follows:

M. F. MARSHALL, section man, head cut, ankle and shoulder sprained, serious. Marshall is supposed to have left the switch open, but he maintains that he closed it.

ENGINEER HUCKETT, head cut, ankle and shoulder sprained.

FIREMAN JAMES NELSON, scalded and head cut, serious.

W. A. KENDALL, section man, head cut, ankle and back sprained.

L. F. STATZ, section man, cuts and bruises.

J. W. LEMON, suffering from shock.

The passengers were uninjured, and their cars went east later. The wounded men were brought to the Pueblo Hospital. The wrecked freight train was the new "sugar-beet" train, plying between Sugar City and Olney.

ANOTHER OPEN SWITCH.

MINSTRELS IN A WRECK.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LEAVENWORTH (Kas.,) Nov. 11.—An open switch caused the northbound Missouri Pacific passenger train this morning to take a siding in the yards here and to collide with a switch engine. Application of the airbrake checked the speed, but the following passengers were injured:

S. H. HARRIS, traveling man, Chicago, ear split.

ARTHUR MAXWELL, trick bicyclist, colored, Chicago, jaw broken.

GEORGE H. LOGAN, Cincinnati, face cut and bruised.

BUD LAWRENCE, colored, cook, St. Louis, shoulder dislocated.

RICHARD LEWIS, colored, Lynchburg, Va.

The colored passengers are members of a minstrel show.

COLLISION IN IOWA.

PROBABLY THREE VICTIMS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

OMAHA (Neb.,) Nov. 11.—By the collision of the overland limited train of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad with a freight train at Missouri Valley, Iowa, last night, Peter C. Peterson of Omaha, a carpenter, who was beating his way, was fatally injured. Before he died, Peterson said that two men were standing on the platform with him when the collision occurred. They have not since been seen, and their bodies may be buried beneath the débris. Their names are unknown.

BRITISH ARMY REFORMS.

From Housemaid's Work Tommy Atkins Will Advance to Scientific Drilling and Target Shooting.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Nov. 12.—[By Atlantic Cable.] According to the Daily Mail, a scheme of army reform of a very sweeping character will come into operation early next year.

"The scheme," says the Daily Mail, "will make the British private a trained soldier. Instead of a system giving the recruit mainly a housemaid's work, and allowing no more than six weeks of military training, he will in future get ten months' scientific drilling, all fatigue and orderly duties being performed by a special corps of time-expired men.

"The first four months will be devoted to company training, including scouting, intrenching, bridging and taking cover. The second four months will be used in battalion maneuvers, attacking and defending positions and field firing. Two months will be given to grand maneuvers on a war scale. The remaining two months of the first year will be occupied by furloughs.

"The greatest attention will be devoted to marksmanship lowance of ammunition increased. Artillery traini be improved. The War O acquiring control of larg land in various parts of for training grounds."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

[illegible] (Ariz.) Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] News has just reached [illegible] near Clifton, last Monday, [illegible] Robert Philips, a boy [illegible] killed John Posey, a [illegible].

The trouble originally grew out of a [illegible] beating over a year ago, [illegible] assaulted young Philips. The father of the lad [illegible] Posey, and each promised [illegible] in case they met. [illegible] the country, but returned a [illegible] ago and made threats [illegible] the Philips family. Since then [illegible] concerned have been armed [illegible] for trouble.

[illegible] Posey was riding on a [illegible] the Philips place and saw [illegible] the yard. He raised his gun [illegible] and young Philips saw him at [illegible] instant and both shot. Posey [illegible] by the first shot, as well as [illegible] four bullets, while the boy [illegible] unscathed, all of Posey's half [illegible] going wild. The fifth bullet [illegible] Philips's rifle brought Posey [illegible] and he died instantly. A later [illegible] the physicians proved [illegible] either of the five wounds would [illegible] fatal.

[illegible] sent his mother for the justice of the peace, while he guarded [illegible] body. He gave himself up on the [illegible] of the officers, but the Coroner's jury rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide on the evidence that [illegible] fired the first shot.

SUNDAY BLOWING-UP.

[illegible] SAN FRANCISCO BLAST.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—An explosion from an unknown cause in the [illegible] Mutual Life Insurance building [illegible] street this morning, [illegible] floors and broke windows as [illegible] the third floor, and forced coal up the elevator shaft as high as [illegible] sixth floor. The lights in the sidewalk were blown into the street, the [illegible] the engine-room to the coal bin was shattered into fragments and buried a distance of fifty feet, while all the woodwork in the basement was more or less damaged.

The explosion is attributed either to the bursting of the electric controller, or to the ignition of coal gas in the basement.

BEST SLOT MACHINE.

MAN WITH LEADEN SLUGS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAUSALITO, Nov. 11.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An unknown man, through the medium of leaden slugs, made quite a clean-up among the slot machines of this town yesterday afternoon. Every machine in town was, to a greater or less exent, a sufferer, and it is estimated the stranger took away with him upward of $150. His method was to enter a store containing a machine and, after securing a dollar's worth of nickels, substitute the lead slugs for them and play until he had made several dollars. After covering his tracks by putting some genuine coins in the exposed places of the gambling device, he would go to the next business place and repeat his work.

The scheme was not discovered until several hours after the fellow had left town. On his way to the city he beat the machine on the ferryboat Sausalito to the extent of six bottles of whisky, which he carried away under his arm. The local police have been notified, and will try to effect the man's capture.

The steam schooner Aloha arrived tonight from Nome via Dutch Harbor. She sailed October 27 and brought few passengers, no later news, and no gold.

HOFNER'S CLAIM BARRED.

BLYTHE ESTATE DISTRIBUTED.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—Concerning the claim of Jacob J. Hofner of New York to a share of the Blythe estate, the attorneys here who were connected with the litigation in the celebrated case say that Hofner has no standing, even if his claim is a valid one. The final distribution of the estate has been made, and no one can change it.

The Blythe case was in the Probate Court for fifteen years before a final settlement was reached, and the millions were awarded to Florence Blythe, now Mrs. A. A. Moore, Jr. Immediately following the order of distribution, which was confirmed by the Supreme Court, the legatee divided her inheritance with her attorneys. Over $2,000,000 was divided between the lawyers.

BRIEF COAST DISPATCHES.

Ship Flintshire's Troubles.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—The British ship Flintshire, which sailed from here for Queenstown, September 22, put back today for repairs. She encountered a hurricane, October 6, in N. lat. 18 deg.; W. long. 125 deg., and was dismasted. The storm raged for two days, and only good seamanship saved the vessel.

Winter Orange Shipments.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 11.—Orange shipments are now being made regularly from Sacramento and the Oroville districts. The fruit finds a ready market in San Francisco at good prices. It is of excellent quality.

Abducted a Girl.

UKIAH, Nov. 11.—Clement Heath of Oakland, was arrested here today by Constable Slack of Point Arena. He is charged with having abducted a young girl named Ada Farrer. Heath's age is about 65. Miss Farrer is only 14. Heath was taken to Point Arena for preliminary examination.

Cleared Supt. King.

UKIAH, Nov. 11.—Three members of the local asylum managers met last night and dismissed the charges against Medical Supt. E. W. King. The charges were of a grave nature, and had been preferred by Hon T. L. Carothers of this city.

Mountain Fire Raging.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 11.—Meager reports are received of a serious fire that is raging in the mountains just beyond El Cajon. Great masses of smoke could be seen from this city during the day.

British Reoccupy the Town After Four Hours' Work. Miss Roberts.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PRETORIA, Nov. 11.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The British have reoccupied Philippopolis after four hours' fighting. Gen. French will take command of the Johannesburg district.

The condition of Miss Roberts, daughter of Lord Roberts, is more serious.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Gen. Baden Powell, according to the Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail, has contracted enteric fever, but his condition is not serious.

COAL MEN'S TROUBLES.

Superintendent Zerby Expects no Strike at the Collieries of the Lehigh Valley Company.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HAZLETON (Pa.,) Nov. 11.—When asked about the story published yesterday to the effect that there would certainly be another strike at the collieries of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, because of the alleged refusal to grant a reduction on the price of dynamite, and that President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor would meet tomorrow in Scranton to talk over the situation, Division Superintendent Zerby, who has charge of all the Lehigh Valley collieries in the Hazleton district, said:

"I know nothing of any dissatisfaction, and the agreement entered into with our men is being carried out. I am not able, however, to speak for my superiors. I know of no difficulty."

LEHIGH VALLEY DIFFERENCES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WILKESBARRE (Pa.,) Nov. 11.—The minor differences which exist between the Lehigh Valley Coal Company and some of their employés are not expected to have a serious ending. The rock men who are employed in opening the tunnels and gangways have petitioned the company for a reduction in the price of dynamite, which the company is not inclined to grant. It is said, however, that the way is open for a compromise.

Three hundred miners employed at the Maltby colliery of the Lehigh Valley Company went on a strike Saturday, because a number of non-union men were put to work. District President Nichols of the United Mine Workers held a conference with the mine superintendent, and it is understood the new men will join the union, and the old hands will resume work tomorrow.

GOT HIS BUTTONS AS A CLEW.

Burned Clothing of Louise Frost's Murderer Found By the Deputies.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER, Nov. 11.—A special to the News from Limon, Colo., says that search for the murderer of Louise Frost was continued today. The town was divided into districts, and a search was made of every house, barn and outbuilding in the place. The deputies were divided into four squads, beginning at the outskirts and working toward the center. Before the search was continued thirty minutes a squad in charge of Deputy Elmer Bloss discovered the remains of a fire where clothing had been burned.

Sheriff Freeman and Sheriff Goddard and Chief of Police Henry of Colorado Springs made a thorough examination of the ashes and found the buttons to a coat, pants and a suit of underclothing and other evidence sufficient to recognize the owner of the clothing, although his name will not be known until an arrest can be made.

Later a pair of shoes were found which showed bloodstains, although they had been covered with a coat of grease. Subsequently the officers found a trail going to the place, and the shoes fitted the tracks exactly. The same tracks were found coming toward Limon, evidently at a run, and they are believed to be made by the same shoes. By this, the suspect is believed to have hidden in the lane in the afternoon, as he cannot be accounted for at the time of the murder, and then to have returned, changed clothes and joined in the search with the others. He had left town when this evidence was found, but the officers have him located.

Excitement is gradually subsiding and it is thought that all suspects can be kept at home in safety, and that no lynching will occur unless positive evidence can be secured or a confession extorted. Sheriff Goddard of El Paso county, Chief of Police Henry of Colorado Springs and Sheriff J. W. Freeman are directing the search. Tonight the force was augmented by Marshal Camp and a detective from Greeley.

THREE NEGROES "SWEATED."

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER, Nov. 11.—Three negroes who had worked with a section gang just previous to the murder of little Louise Frost several days ago were arrested on suspicion here today. A rigid "sweat-box" examination failed even to elicit a reply to the inquiry as to their names. They are being held for further investigation.

One of the three suspects arrested in Denver today is named Porter. Concerning Porter, a special to the News from Limon says: "Young Porter, arrested in Denver, is the colored man suspected of the deed. He was laying off the afternoon of the murder and hung around the barroom of the Limon Hotel until after 3 o'clock Tuesday. Two marbles found in the fire were identified by a boy who saw Porter playing with them during the noon hour. The clothes are undoubtedly those of Porter. It is said that he has served a term in the reform school in Kansas for assault. Sheriff Freeman said tonight that Porter would be brought to Hugo on the first train."

SHOT HER PETER.

Mrs. Schmidt Says Her Husband Drank Heavily and Paid Attention to Other Women.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—May Teresa Josephine Schmidt shot and almost instantly killed her husband, Peter, late tonight at their home, No. 1238 North Marshfield avenue.

After the shooting which occurred in the parlor of the house, Schmidt staggered out through the front door and fell dead in the yard. Mrs. Schmidt made no attempt to escape, and she admitted the shooting, but declared her husband had driven her to desperation by his acts. For some time, the woman declares, she had been neglected by her husband, who was drinking heavily and paying attention to other women. When he entered his home late tonight, his wife declares, he was intoxicated, and she upbraided him for his acts. A quarrel and the shooting followed.

CANADA CUP CHALLENGE.

Chicagoans Will Be Invited to Race Their Yachts Against Those of the Canadian Club.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TORONTO, (Ont.,) Nov. 11.—A challenge will be sent by the Royal Canadian Yacht Club to the Chicago Yacht Club for the Canada cup. This action was decided upon at a meeting of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Executive Committee Saturday evening.

A subcommittee met tonight and framed a challenge. Upon the conditions governing the Canada cup, ten months' notice must be given by the challenger. The idea is to have the race sailed as soon after July 1 as is convenient for the Chicago Yacht Club. The challenge will be for a race for the 35-foot class, three out of five. The Royal Canadian Yacht Club will suggest that the race will be sailed at Buffalo, if a suitable purse is offered.

SHOT THE PREACHER.

Robert Bostick Finds Rev. John Holden in His Bedroom When He Returns Home Unexpectedly.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HUNTINGTON (W. Va.,) Nov. 11.—Rev. John Holden, a prominent minister in the Methodist Episcopal conference of this district, was probably fatally shot by Robert Bostick at Mattewan. There has been trouble between the families for some time.

Later reports state that Bostwick told his wife he would be away over Sunday; that he came back late in the night and found Holden at his house. The shooting, it is said, was done in Bostick's bedroom.

MINE WORKERS' BOARD.

Matters of Grave Importance to Be Discussed at the Meeting to be Held in Indianapolis.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 11.—The meeting of the next executive board of the United Mine Workers of America which is to be held here tomorrow is the last to be held by the board before the national convention in January.

Matters of grave importance will be considered and the policy to be adopted at the convention will be outlined. Foremost among these matters is the condition in the anthracite field. While the miners were victorious in the great strike which has just been settled this was simply a preliminary skirmish, and a great deal of work remains to be done, it is announced. The primary consideration is to get the operators to meet the representatives of the United Mine Workers in annual scale conference.

At each of these conferences the price of mining, the powder question, and a number of other problems that have confronted the organization for a number of years will be fixed, and an agreement for a year entered into.

The second question of importance to be taken up is the admission of West Virginia and Iowa to the competitive field. Both States have been clamoring for admittance for a year, and some friction was apparent at the last convention because Iowa was not admitted.

The members of the executive council will hear reports from the organisers in the States named, and if the conditions are regarded as favorable, it is highly probable that both will be taken into the fold. None of the officials is prepared to say whether or not an advance in wages will be asked.

PLUCKED MONEY OFF A TREE.

How Bailiff Appel Found a Nest Egg When He Was in Dire Need.

Probably the only man who ever found money hanging on a tree, and to be had for the plucking of it, when he was dead broke, is Nathan B. Appel, the veteran bailiff of the Los Angeles Police Court. Bailiff Appel, whose veracity has never been questioned, tells the following interesting story of how providence miraculously sent him a nest egg when he most needed it:

"In the early fifties I found myself stranded in the now extinct town of Tubac, Ariz., which was then a small military post and mining center, surrounded by hostile Indians and almost entirely cut off from civilization. I had purchased a small hacienda and intended to establish a trading post, but my supplies were captured by the Apaches and I was left without a dollar in the world and no prospect of getting a fresh start in business in a hurry. This naturally made me feel very blue, but my faithful wife, who was never inclined to worry about anything, tried to cheer me up by telling me that the Lord would provide. I confess I was rather skeptical about finding broiled quail hanging on the bushes or receiving a shower of manna. I calculated that unless I got in and hustled in a lively fashion the Lord would not be very apt to send his ravens to feed me and my family. But it turned out that Providence, or whatever you might call it, did give me a substantial lift in a very unusual manner. It happened in this way:

"One morning when I was feeling exceptionally downcast I happened to meet a harum-scarum sort of a soldier whom I got acquainted with in New Mexico several years before. He was under sentence for some infraction of military discipline, but was on parole and had just drawn a lot of back pay from the government. The town was full of soldiers, who were being paid off, and they were spending their money recklessly, but that did not do me any good, as I had nothing I could give them in exchange for their wealth, and I was too proud to beg and too honest to try to steal or gamble.

"However, when my soldier friend invited me to take a drink with him, I followed him into a store where wet goods were kept and where, also, a faro bank and other gambling layouts were being run. Instead of buying the contemplated drinks, my soldier companion staked his all, about $300, in hard cash, on the turn of a card in a Mexican monte game. Of course he lost, and all he got out of his foolishness was one drink at the bar, which the winner of his money condescended to buy for him.

"It made me feel mighty bad to see so much money thrown away so recklessly when I needed a little of it so much, so I scolded the spendthrift for his folly and told him if I had known he was going to squander his money in that way, I would have had the gall to strike him for a loan of $50 or some such amount. He replied that I might have had it for the asking, and I believe he meant what he said, but it was then too late.

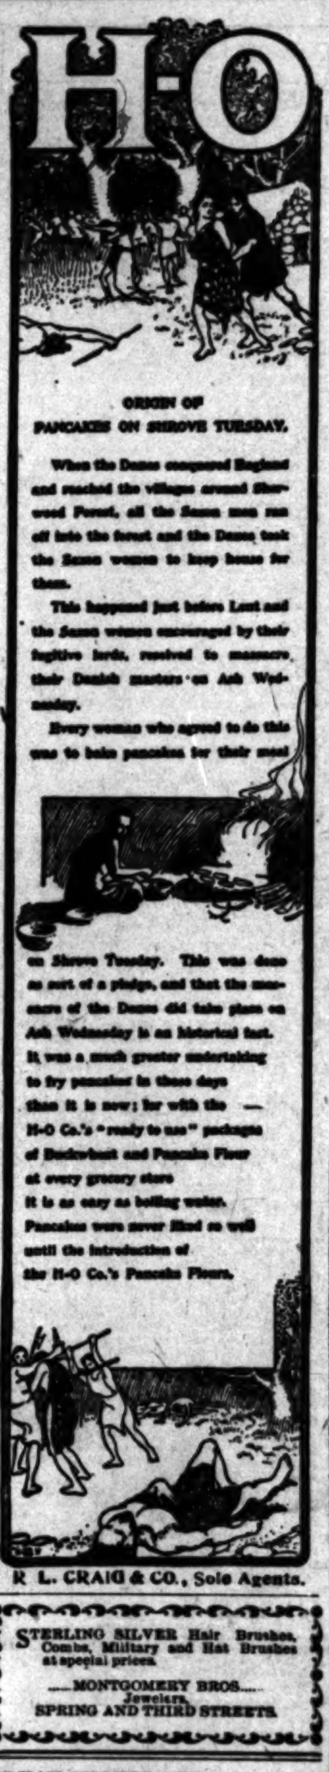
"I went home more despondent than ever and told my wife how a neat sum of money that would have tided us over our temporary wants had virtually slipped through my fingers. She told me not to let that worry me, as she felt sure the Lord would yet provide. I had my doubts about that as before, and went to bed that night very despondent. The next morning I was up bright and early and feeling better, for somehow I had gained courage over night and now felt that my luck was bound to change for the better soon.

"Without any definite purpose in view, I sprang over the adobe wall surrounding our hacienda, and started to trudge briskly through the mesquite bushes that grew in the neighborhood. I had taken only a few steps when my attention was drawn by a buzzing sound. I stopped to see what made the noise. Again there was a sort of rustling as of a dry leaf agitated by the wind. I looked again for the cause of the noise, and there, right before my eyes, I beheld a crisp $50 bill sticking on a mesquite thorn and being whirled around by the wind, which had occasioned the noise I had heard. I could scarcely believe my eyes at first, but I reached out for the money and plucked it off the tree and it proved to be real money, sure enough.

"You may be sure I was not very long in getting home with my treasure and showing it to my wife. She was a pious woman, and immediately gave praises to God for sending us this miracle. It did look like a divine dispensation, I am free to admit. Yet to this day I am also of the opinion that if it had not been for that gang of drunken soldiers who were literally throwing their money to the winds in that little frontier post at that particular time, that $50 William would hardly have got stuck on that mesquite bush in that peculiar way. However, God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform, and I can truthfully say that I was very thankful for the money, however it came. It put me on my feet again."

NORFOLK CAR SHEDS BURN.

NORFOLK (Va.,) Nov. 11.—The car sheds and electric plant of the Norfolk Railway and Lighting Company in Huntersville, a suburb of Norfolk, were totally destroyed by fire today. Fifty-two cars and the electrical machinery were destroyed. The loss is $150,000.



ORIGIN OF PANCAKES ON SHROVE TUESDAY.

When the Danes conquered England and reached the villages around Sherwood Forest, all the Saxon men ran off into the forest and the Danes took the Saxon women to keep house for them.

This happened just before Lent and the Saxon women encouraged by their fugitive lords, resolved to massacre their Danish masters on Ash Wednesday.

Every woman who agreed to do this was to bake pancakes for their meal on Shrove Tuesday. This was done as sort of a pledge, and that the massacre of the Danes did take place on Ash Wednesday is an historical fact.

It was a much greater undertaking to fry pancakes in those days than it is now; for with the H-O Co.'s "ready to use" package of Buckwheat and Pancake Flour at every grocery store it is as easy as boiling water. Pancakes were never liked so well until the introduction of the H-O Co.'s Pancake Flours.

Discovery Made That the Ex-Candidate Will Attend His Cousin's Inauguration As Governor of Florida.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.,) Nov. 11.—Democratic Governor-elect William S. Jennings has been informed that his cousin, William J. Bryan will visit him at his home in Brooksville, Fla., and be present at the inauguration at Tallahassee on the first Tuesday in January.

ALLEGED MURDERERS ACQUITTED.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 11.—James Hardy and Elmer Miller, who have been on trial at Anoka for the murder of two members of the Wise family, were today found not guilty. Mrs. Wise and a young son were killed on the night of May 27 last, by shots fired through a window, while seated about a table in their farm house. William Wise, her husband, and an older boy were badly wounded, and have not yet recovered from the effects of the wounds. Eliza Wise, aged 15, made a confession alleging that Miller and Hardy, who were said to be lovers of herself and sister, had planned to get rid of the old folks in order that the girls might inherit the farm, and a small sum of money. On the trial of the two young men, who are both under age, the Wise sisters testified to the alleged conspiracy and the State presented in corroboration of their evidence the testimony of Allie Preston, who alleged that Harry had proposed to him to join in the crime. The defense rested its case upon an alibi, and sought to discredit the testimony of the Wise sisters and Preston by alleging that they had been coached by detectives who were working for the large reward offered by the State.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS' STRIKE.

HOUSTON (Tex.,) Nov. 11.—A notice was given out at Dallas late tonight saying all electrical workers in Dallas will strike tomorrow morning. The notice was signed by several leaders of the Electrical Workers' Union. It is also said that all the linemen of the Southwestern Telephone Company are going to strike tomorrow in sympathy with the strike of telephone operators in the southern cities of the State. The strike is now on at Houston, San Antonio, Galveston and Waco, and grows out of grievances of the operatives at San Antonio and Waco.

Why?
It is because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a hair-food; goes right down to the roots of the hair; feeds the hair bulbs just the way they used to be fed when you were younger and more vigorous. That's why the dark, rich color of early life always comes back to your gray hair. The hair grows longer, too.
If you do not obtain the benefit you desire from use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. He will tell you just the right thing to do. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

New Discovery By The Misses Bell
A Trial Treatment FREE To Any One Afflicted With Hair on Face, Neck or Arms
We have at last made the discovery which has baffled chemists and all others for centuries—that of absolutely destroying superfluous hair, root and branch, entirely and permanently, and that too without impairing in any way the finest or most sensitive skin. It is scarcely possible to overstate the importance of this discovery, or the great good and satisfaction it will be to those afflicted with one of the most disfiguring and aggravating blemishes—that of superfluous hair on the face of women, whether it be a mustache or growth on the neck, cheeks or arms.
The Misses Bell have thoroughly tested its efficacy and are desirous that the full merits of their treatment to which they have given the descriptive name of "KILL-ALL-HAIR" shall be known to all afflicted. To this end a trial will be sent free of charges, to any lady who will write for it. Without a cent of cost you can see for yourselves what the discovery is; the evidence of your own senses will then convince you that the treatment "KILL-ALL-HAIR" will rid you of one of the greatest drawbacks to perfect loveliness, the growth of superfluous hair on the face or neck of women.
Please understand that a personal demonstration of our treatment costs you nothing. A trial will be sent you free, which you can use yourself and prove our claims by sending two stamps for mailing.

HUNTING WITH A C

A New Wholesome and Sport That is P to Women.

[Forest and Stream:] who is the father of naturally looks forward anticipations to the time shall become his pupil in the field. But if he tune or good fortune but to be blessed what then?

Nothing can be share enjoyments with friends, and this certainly clude both sexes, yet an impropriety in women field sports. That must on the view that is taken whether they are cruel or, rather, whether that dominant, for it cannot suffering is inflicted in But one sportsman's with which the sports cure her trophies of the absolute certainty of and which demands no the gun to become skillful while more caution, patience craft are called for to get range of the object.

The sportsman may stalk within 200 or 300 yards fair a shot with his rifle or with the smoothbore range of that weapon, ably sure of cutting down bird or running animal; of the camera must gain to secure the game. Yet, it is for all time an entire amid its actual a pair of antlers or a head a blank wall, nor brush telling no story. There are sons to be heeded, and pass sign prohibiting the harmless instrument.

The grouse strutting on log, his brown wife sitting among the arbutus, and rusty leaves or tering in defense of chicks; the woodcock tussocky swamp side; the summer suit of brown—are game as when the and full-grown brood painted thickets; or the close under the golden-leaved a sunny October hillside; when she sits in her form silent as the snow around

In all this hunting there is the same healthful wholesome exhilaration, much woodcraft to insure hunting with the deadly all these advantages, with toward hardening the heart a suspicion of unwomanliness our wives, sisters and that they can desire in the door recreation.

THIRTY SHAKESPEARE EVENINGS.

IX.—INFLUENCE OF THE ELIZABETHAN STAGE.

BEFORE 1888 our knowledge of the interior arrangement of an English theater during the lifetime of Shakespeare was very vague. In that year a German scholar named Gaedertz published a facsimile of a pen and ink drawing of the interior of the famous Swan Theater. This drawing was made by a Dutchman named John de Witt, who was visiting in London, and it is thought to belong to about the year 1596. The Swan Theater was built about 1598 on the Bankside, the south side of the Thames. When new it was the finest of the London theaters.

It will be seen that the theater is either oval or circular in shape; that the body of the house and the front of the stage are open to the sky; and that the back of the stage and the three galleries, which rise one above another on the outside of the theater, are roofed over. These galleries are divided into private boxes. The spectators in the pit or yard in front of the stage stood while witnessing the performance.

A roof covers the hinder part of the stage. Perched up on top of this roof is a small tower-room, which is the loftiest portion of the entire theater. In the drawing of De Witt a flag having on it the figure of a "swan" is flying from the tower, and a trumpeter is sounding a blast in order to announce that a play is about to begin.

There is no curtain before the front stage. Every character in a front scene must enter and go off before our eyes. If any had been slain they must be carried off. When Falstaff bears away on his back the dead Hotspur, in order to boast of having killed him, in "I Henry IV," Shakespeare skillfully brings into the substance of his play the necessary clearing of the stage.

The front stage usually had little or no scenery. It could represent any open place. As soon as one scene was completed by the going off of the characters a new set of persons could at once enter, and the audience would imagine any desired change of scene, provided only the action was still in the open air. Thus the many short scenes in the first part of "Coriolanus," in which bands of Roman and Volscian warriors come before us alternately, were presented with a simplicity, rapidity and effectiveness that our stage knows nothing of. Our editors of Shakespeare are sometimes too anxious to give an exact location to each of these front scenes. The audience understood them to be enacted "in an open place," or simply "out of doors."

The special use of the back stage was to represent a room in a palace or princely house. Upon this portion of the stage use was made of a few appropriate articles of furniture and other "properties." The walls were hung with arras, behind which Falstaff esconces himself on one occasion and Polonius on another. In "Romeo and Juliet" the back stage represents the great reception hall of Capulet. In act V it was transformed into the tomb of the Capulets. Domestic scenes were acted upon this back stage. Here appeared Lady Percy, Calphurnia, both Portias and all the other noble women of Shakespeare, closing with Imogen, Hermione and Queen Katharine.

In the last act of "The Tempest," where Prospero "discovers (that is, discloses) Ferdinand and Miranda playing at chess," we are to understand that he draws back the side curtains, which up to that moment had shut off the back stage, in order that the King of Naples and his nobles may behold the lovers.

The doors which lead from the back stage into the "tiring house" sometimes come into the action. For example, they represent the gates of Corioli. Through one of these Caius Marcius enters the city alone and then fights his way out again covered with blood, thus inspiring his followers to capture the city and winning for himself the proud name Coriolanus. These same doors are the gates at many different castles and cities in the plays which are named from the various English kings.

One who has given special attention to the matter can realize how important in the presentation of Shakespeare's plays was the balcony over the "tiring house." This third or upper stage with the hinder wall of the back stage represented the walls of many cities and castles—for example, the castle wall from which young Arthur jumps to his death in "King John." This little gallery becomes the window from which Brabantio speaks at the opening of "Othello," and the window of Juliet's chamber. From here Christopher Sly, changed into a lord, witnesses "The Taming of the Shrew." Looking from this balcony Henry VIII sees Cranmer as he waits on the front stage outside the council chamber (act V, scene 2) and then is harshly treated within the council chamber, the back stage. In "Richard III" Gloucester comes to the front of the balcony when with consummate hypocrisy he makes his appearance "between two bishops" (III, 7.) Upon this upper stage the play before the King in "Hamlet" was presented. This upper stage is the monument where Cleopatra takes refuge. Anthony is lifted up to her from the floor of the back stage that he may die in her arms.

Since the back stage was furnished and arranged to represent in a rough way each specific indoor scene, two back scenes representing different interiors could not come in succession, since this would give no opportunity to change the furnishings, and the Elizabethan audiences had not learned to wait. Shakespeare was compelled to insert at least one front scene whenever two back scenes with different settings would otherwise come together. Sometimes these inserted scenes are dramatically superfluous and ineffective. Act III, scene 6, of "Richard III," act III, scene 5, of "The Merchant of Venice," act II, scene 1, of "Cymbeline" and act III, scene 3, of "Julius Caesar" have been pointed out by different critics as scenes of this sort, forced upon Shakespeare by a stage necessity. The first three of these scenes are plainly superfluous on the whole. They do not advance the action, and have little other value. The best one of the whole four is the death of the poet Cinna in "Julius Caesar." This is an effective scene in itself considered, but it does not help the play greatly. The preceding scene in the Roman forum, containing Anthony's great oration, is a "mass scene" and probably the whole stage was employed, both front and back.

I noticed recently that act III, scene 1, of "Anthony and Cleopatra" is one of these dramatically superfluous front scenes. Though the passage contains some strikingly worldly wisdom, it is of no service to the play in any way. The only reason why we have it is that it gave time in which to change the back stage, which had just represented a scene "on board Pompey's galley" (act II, scene 7) into a "room in Caesar's house" (act III, scene 2.)

Alois Brandl believes that the three separate divisions of the Elizabethan stage were sometimes all in use together, that three different groups of persons could in some measure claim the attention of the audience at the same time. He shows good reason for thinking that act IV, scenes 4 and 5, of "Romeo and Juliet" were thus presented. I quote his words:

"In the reception hall—that is, upon the back stage—Lady Capulet and the nurse are busily engaged in preparing the meal for the wedding guests; servants with food, firewood and baskets are hurrying to and from the kitchen; the nurse is sent up into Juliet's chamber in order to waken the prospective bride. Above in the balcony we see her draw back the window curtain, but she cannot arouse the sleeper—below the clatter of preparation continues—the nurse becomes anxious and calls for help. Lady Capulet climbs the stair and beholds the sad spectacle; Capulet appears; both lament over the body of their daughter. In the meantime, musicians have drawn near upon the front stage; Paris will carry away his bride with cheery piping; thus the festive tumult ever increases on the floor of the stage, as does the noise of lamentation above in the chamber; and both of them are both seen and heard by the spectator, until at last the words of Capulet spoken to Paris from the window put an end to this shocking contrast. In the modern theater, with all its elaborate apparatus and decorations, half of the effect of such scenes is lost."

A modern manager puts a Shakespearean play on the stage with a vast display of elaborate scenery and gorgeous costumes. Long waits between the scenes and acts make it necessary to mutilate the play in various ways. Scenes are combined that Shakespeare kept apart, the order of the parts of the play is freely departed from, and many passages and whole scenes are omitted altogether. In this way many touches of preparation, retrospect, transition and characterization are simply dropped. The result may be magnificent, but in many ways it is not Shakespeare. Moreover, the expense of the elaborate setting is so oppressive that managers are loath to produce Shakespeare at all. Sir Henry Irving recently announced that his losses on Shakespearean productions amounted to £100,000. Plays written expressly for the modern stage are more cautious in the demands that they make.

Undoubtedly Shakespeare sometimes went too far in breaking up the action of a drama into separate, scattered scenes, but in his greatest works all the parts of the play should be presented, and the correct order of the scenes is a necessary part of the effect. The order of the separate short scenes in the fifth act of "Macbeth" is a definite part of the dramatic effect.

Shakespeare's plays were constructed for Shakespeare's theater; they are falsified when presented to an audience in an entirely different manner. This fact has come to be recognized more and more, and various attempts have been made to remedy the difficulty. A number of Elizabethan plays have been presented by the students of Harvard University during recent years upon a stage especially constructed in the Elizabethan fashion. Since 1895 the Elizabethan Stage Society of London has presented a number of Elizabethan plays in the Elizabethan manner. But the only important attempt to appeal to the general public by means of a reformed method of presenting the plays of Shakespeare has been made in Munchen. Since 1889, except for an intervial of two years, the plays of Shakespeare have been frequently acted there upon a specially prepared stage. Only such omissions are made in the text as good taste demands. The stage is not a strict imitation of the Elizabethan, but is said to resemble it in the more important features. Only a moderate use is made of stage furnishings and decorative effects. This element is kept subordinate. There are no waits between the scenes, and only slight ones between the acts. The specially-prepared stage employed at Munchen is called "die Shakespeare-Buhne"—the Shakespeare stage. Many lovers of Shakespeare in Germany are enthusiastic over this reform. They insist that a whole play of Shakespeare makes a very different impression from the selected parts and tableau effects to which the modern stage has accustomed us. The Shakespearean presentations at Munchen offer an abundance of pleasure and instruction for the students of the great dramatist.

The peculiar feature in the mechanism of the Shakespeare-Buhne is said to be that one movable back stage can be set in order while another is being used; each of these back parts can be moved in behind the permanent forward portion of the stage when it is wanted.

The important facts are that Shakespeare's plays are given at Munchen in full, without waits, and with only a moderate amount of stage furnishing. The accent is put upon the acting and elocution and not upon the scene painting and rich setting. Judging by the reports the experiment is a success, popularly, educationally and financially. Would that America might honor in a similar way the memory of the great poet!

Murder Case Against James Redmond at Kansas City, Mo., to Be Dismissed By Authorities.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.,) Nov. 11.—County Prosecutor Yates anounces that he will dismiss the celebrated case against James Redmond, who is charged with being one of the principles in the murder of Emma Schumacher, who was robbed and murdered by two men in a grocery store, in this city on the night of December 8, 1897. This action is due to the lack of evidence caused by the death of William Handy, an old negro, who was the most important witness for the State, and at whose house, Redmond sought shelter the night after the crime.

Jack Kennedy, who figured in several train robberies in this vicinity, was arrested with Redmond, but Kennedy received a 17-year sentence to the penitentiary for train robbery before he could be tried for murder. Redmond escaped, and after many daring experiences with Federal and State officers, he was rearrested, August 16, 1898, in the Philippines, where he had served as a private in an American regiment. During the Santiago campaign, Redmond served under Roosevelt in the Rough Riders.

[OUR DAILY STORY.]

ON THE CABIN JOHN ROAD.

BY H. S. CANFIELD.

ON THE left hand a long slope of hills; on the right the waters of the Potomac, broadly down-rolling to the sea; ahead of them a level winding road and the lights of Washington reflected on the night sky; behind them the remains of an excellent dinner, aided by a pint or so of odorous Bergundy. The two horses hitched to the light vehicle walked lazily, the reins upon their backs, the harness scarce rattling. The month was October, the air soft as velvet.

"I have asked you to marry me," he said, flicking the ash from his cigar and staring absently into the semi-darkness, "and I have your answer. I confess that I am disappointed, though I must say in honesty that you have given little cause to warrant my belief that you would be my wife. I am curious to know the reason for your refusal."

"A woman is not required to give reasons," she answered slowly. "A woman is not supposed to be a reasoning animal."

"That is not my view," he said, smiling. "I know you well enough to know that you would not act upon impulse. You are too intelligent, and, excuse me, you are too old."

"I will never see 29 again; that's a fact," she said laughing. "Causality, however, does not come with years. Perhaps I refused you only from dislike to experiment."

"That is not so," he replied, sturdily. "The change would be for your betterment. A man wooing should not spread his possessions before the wooed like a lot of wedding presents on show, yet I must say that I offer you more than you have been able to achieve of your unaided effort."

"Let us see," she said. "To be exact, what is it that you offer me?"

"I offer you my name and with it my heart. I am 35 and I love you more than all of the other women I have loved rolled into one. I offer you wealth and freedom from toil. I offer you high social position, which shall be higher. It seems to me sometimes," he added with a laugh, "that you forget I am one of the most imporant men in the country; I am a politician, a capitalist, a Congressman and will be the next Senator from my State."

"No I do not forget those things and I am frank to say that they tempt me. To be your wife would give me more position than I am likely to win for myself. Moreover, as the heroines used to say in 'Pamela' and 'Clarissa Harlowe,' and books like that, you are not—you are not distasteful to me. I could, I think, be something of a power in the society of Washington, which is equivalent to saying that I could be something of a political power. I could make your house much sought by men of all parties. We might even cabal and conspire. With me to help, you might land in the White House and I would come to be known as the 'First Lady of the Land.' I do not covet the title, though the place frees one from the servant-girl problem, but it sounds well. Nevertheless, I have told you 'No' and it is an irrevocable 'No.' You would like to know why, of course. All men are curious."

"I would." He said it emphatically.

"Well, then; to begin: I am nearly 30 and love does not stir me, though I like, admire and esteem you. Against the things you offer, let us balance the things I would be required to surrender. For your wealth I would sacrifice my earning capacity; for your freedom from toil I would sacrifice an occupation that has been with me for years; for high and higher social position I care nothing. I come of a family which can afford to laugh at such things, and for it I would sacrifice my ability to go where I please, to do what I please, to be what I please; in exchange for your name, a potent and honorable one, I would be called upon to give my identity, to merge myself in you, to lose my individuality, to be held responsible for your mistakes, as well as for my own, to share only humbly and in secondary fashion in the triumphs which would come to you—in a word, to play second fiddle and I was never a violinst."

He ground the cigar hard between his teeth and muttered:

"Yet I know that your life is a hard one; that it contains trials and disappointments; that it is a steady, wearing struggle; and I offer you security and ease."

"That is so," she conceded, "and with many women you would have to offer nothing else. But think what I am, what I have been and what I hope to be. At eighteen I marked out this career, and I have followed it with steady footsteps. Through practically incessant toil, through doubt, through difficulties, through dangers even, I have clung to it, hugging its scant rewards, receiving unflinchingly its buffets and always climbing. Why, when I began I got $6 a week and paid my own carfare. Now I am 'Our Own Correspondent at the Capital,' I get $100 a week and I have a carriage."

"What's a hundred dollars a week?"

"Little enough—not half so much as I deserve—but, such as it is, I have made it with my own hands. Can't you understand that what I am and where I am are the product of myself; it is my work; I made it; it is part of me; I am proud of it; I can not surrender it; I cannot give it all up at any man's bidding, or asking."

"That sounds queerly from a woman."

"Yet it should not. Hath a woman not eyes, ears, hands, feet as a Christian hath? We have our desires, our ambitions. We look with pride upon successful effort. We bear in silence blows that would tempt a man to death and reversals that would drive him to suicide. We have our places in the world and we fill them. I, for instance, can be and am a power for good or evil."

"Yet think how intensified that power would be if you were my wife."

"Now we get at the root of the issue. I have weighed all that and I find it wanting. Married to you I should lose power. Think: As the wife of a Senator I should have a salon. I should meet history-makers. I should be compelled to cajole, to fascinate, to scheme, to persuade, to flatter, to be in turn dictatorial and subservient. With what result? After years of such incessant effort you attain to the highest dignity in the possibilities of the American citizen. And here and there may be one wise enough to know, and frank enough to say, that you owed it largely to your wife. I should shine dimly with reflected glory. You would be commander in war, head of the state in peace; I supposedly would hold interviews with the housekeeper and the chef."

"Yet a woman's place is the home."

"You cannot generalize about women. A woman's place is the home when a home is her sole ambition. It is not my ambition. I meet every day the men whom I should meet as your wife. I know them. Do I cajole, fascinate, scheme, persuade, flatter? The New York Star rushes from its thundering presses 500,000 copies per diem, which go through the hands of more than two millions of American readers. Do I seek these men? Am I subservient? They seek me and they are subservient. My telegrapher lays his fingers on the key and waits for me to bless or blast. By Diana! I command!"

"And when you grow old, childless and lonely?"

"I shall not grow old. Age has no terror for the newspaper folk. It waits for few of us. To live, borne forward on the full tide of force; to pass early into blackness and be remembered of no man; that is our destiny, and we are content; at least, we have lived; and, as the dying gourmand said about his dinners, even God cannot take from us the thing we have been and the things we have done."

"You are astray," he said. "I feel I know that you are astray. Yet you must decide for yourself."

"I am the master of my fate. I am the captain of my soul," she responded steadily.

"But, when all is said, what is it that you so hate to resign?"

"I will not, I cannot resign the knowledge that I hold within the hollow of my hand—the power to thrill the nations."

The hoofs of the horses were ringing upon asphalt now. Soon the man and the woman were bathed in the lights of the great garish hotel. She sprang lightly out. He leaned forward and asked earnestly:

"We are still friends."

She smiled up at him brightly, small, with alert face, steady, capable gray eyes and resolute chin.

"Until you say or do something contrary to the policies of the Star," she said.

PARADE AND PETITION.

Socialists of Brussels Take Note of Prince Albert's Marriage and Ask Universal Suffrage.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Socialist demonstration which was prepared at the time of the home-coming of Prince Albert, after his marriage to Duchess Elizabeth of Bavaria, occurred today.

Fifteen thousand persons paraded, and the burgomaster received a deputation, who presented to him a petition in favor of universal suffrage. There was absolutely no disorder whatever, and the city this evening is perfectly calm.

HE PREFERRED A POLE.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—Mgr. Stabewski, archbishop of Posen, in Prussian Poland, issued a manifesto against a German Centrist candidate, and in favor of a Polish candidate. His circular has attracted much attention, and the government will probably take notice of it.

LIVE-STOCK COMPANY BANKRUPT.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Nov. 11.—The Elmore-Cooper Live-Stock Company has filed a petition in bankruptcy. The liabilities, placed at $600,000, are mostly the result of the Gillette failure a year ago. The assets are placed at $200,000.

Comparing Experiences.

[Harper's Bazar:] "Ah, Mrs. De Styles, how do you do?" said Mr. Seers, cordially at the reception. "This is the first time I've seen you since I ran across you in Paris. What did you think of the exposition?"

"Oh, wasn't it splendid?" cried Mrs. De Styles, enthusiastically. "Do you remember the Hall of Light? I nearly die of covetousness every time I think of it."

"Why, no. The Hall of Light? Why, what, where, was it?" queried Mr. Seers, with a puzzled frown.

"Don't you really know? In the Champ de Mars," explained Mrs. De Styles. "Where all those magnificent gowns were exhibited by the dressmakers."

"Oh!" said Mr. Seers, comprehendingly. "But weren't you struck by the beauty of—"

"There was a dinner dress in black Spanish lace over white taffeta, the skirt accordion pleated," interrupted Mrs. De Styles, eagerly, "that was indeed a beauty. The bodice—"

"Didn't you find that the Palace of Fine Arts appealed irresistibly to your aesthetic aspirations?" asked Mr. Seers, ponderously.

"Speaking of appealing irresistibly," said Mrs. De Styles, "there was the most delicious ball dress that appealed so to me that I almost faint when I think of anybody else ever wearing it. It was white tulle over pink, with the most wonderful design of embroidered lilies in soft floss silks intersecting arabesques of white spangles—"

"Er—yes," assented Mr. Seers. "How did you like the electric fountain?"

"Oh, pretty well. But there was a mantle of embroidered [illegible] sole [illegible] lieved with jet and silver flowers, that was magnificent," replied Mrs. De Styles.

"Didn't you think Old Paris very interesting?" asked Mr. Seers, as she stopped for breath.

"Very," acknowledged Mrs. De Styles. "And there was the most interesting bodice, with the collar and the empiecement transparent, and a beautifully embroidered empire corselet in pale blue faille, finished with— Oh, must you go, Mr. Seers? Do call soon, and we'll compare notes more at our ease."

AT THE CITY'S GATES.

EAST LOS ANGELES.

GOOD MAIL SERVICE.

The postmaster at Station A, on Daly street, since the placing of the mail cars on the Pasadena line, handles sixteen mails a day. The East Side has no complaint concerning its mail service.

T. W. Hamilton has returned from Rosemont, where he was at work in the mines. It is reported that he brought some "rocks" with him.

Complaints continue concerning the electric-light service on the streets of the East Side. There were no lights on Avenues 20 and 21 on Friday night.

Dr. Dorland of the East Side Congregational Church began Sunday evening a series of talks on psychology, with the special purpose of interesting the young people. Sunday morning Dr. Dorland's sermon was from Luke xi, 1: "Lord teach us to pray." There are many things that will not be given us for the asking. If, for instance, God gave us knowledge of mathematics, no one would study. A father will destroy a boy's development by solving all his problems for him. We must not expect to escape exercising our faculties by asking God to do every hard thing for us.

Three box car tourists were registered at the East Side Police Station at 3 o'clock Saturday morning.

There are few more attractive residence sections about Los Angeles than that northeast of Downey avenue. It is rapidly improving with pleasant cottage homes.

BOYLE HEIGHTS.

FINE VIEW OF CITY.

Since the opening of the new car line on the south end of Boyle avenue, many people have for the first time enjoyed a view of the city from the eminence at the Orphans' School. It is a superb view, and great crowds took it in yesterday. Most of them then walked down into Hollenbeck Park, seeing it also from the south, where the most picturesque view is to be had.

VERNON.

NOT A BED OF ROSES.

Republican success has imposed hardships upon both parties to an election, but in Vernon J. V. Munroe and G. C. Coy will this evening doff their shoes and stockings and, barefooted, each will haul A. L. Shipley a distance of one mile on a wheelbarrow. The character of the wheelbarrow makes it a doubtful question as to which has the worst of the bargain. The vehicle looks as though it might be entitled to a place in the Coronel collection, being a very primitive affair, with one leg and no bottom, but where the anatomy of Mr. Shipley must rest, there is an uninviting array of great rusty spikes and bolts. The event has been widely advertised, and it is to be made one of great local importance.

R. F. Groom has just returned from Nome City, Alaska, and is regaling his friends with stories of the frozen North.

R. W. Klages has built a handsome cottage on Forty-fifth street.

Ernest Crocker of Forty-sixth street has just completed a cottage.

G. H. Hight and M. Clark have each erected cottages on Vernon avenue near Central.

PICO HEIGHTS.

GOOD FOOTBALL.

Harvard School and Throop Institute, second eleven, played a game of football on the Pico Heights grounds on Saturday, which resulted in a score of 6 to 5 in favor of Harvard. Experts who witnessed the game say it was one of the most scientific games seen this season, both teams acquitting themselves finely. They are evenly matched at about 135 pounds.

The Guernsey Investment Company has just sold a lot at Pico and Reed streets, to M. Johnson, who will at once build a residence.

UNIVERSITY.

ETHICAL CLUB TO MEET.

The meetings of the University Ethical Club have been a feature of University Place ever since the inception of the organization. During the summer months sessions were discontinued, but they have been resumed, and the regular meeting for November will be held tonight at the home of Mrs. M. Burton Williamson, No. 1060 West Jefferson street. Rabbi S. Hecht will deliver the address of the evening on "The Ethics of Judaism." The usual discussion will follow, and a musical programme will be given.

The condition of University streets is materially improved by the work being done by the street department, in cleaning gutters and arranging for the proper drainage of the flood of rain that is expected this winter. Several gangs of laborers have been busy during the past week attending to such work.

The inspectors for the Horticultural Commission have been in University Place and having discovered scale, have decreed that a number of ornamental shade trees shall be cut down. Property owners affected are incensed at the order given, and many of them have declined to have their trees destroyed unless compelled by an order of court. It is disputed by some that the scale is present, and others claim that, even if the pest is here, it can be killed by spraying and fumigation, and it is not necessary to ruin the appearance of many handsome properties by cutting down the shade trees.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

Mr. Bryan and his supporters have sought to make capital out of the fact that the Republican party contains more men of wealth than the party contains which supported Bryan's candidacy. We have been treated to a great deal of wild and foolish talk about "plutocracy," "the money power," etc., until some well-meaning people have probably come to believe that the possession of wealth by individuals is fundamentally wrong and necessarily a menace to the well-being of the state.

This view of the matter is unsound, as every man of common sense well knows. The possession of wealth is not in itself an evil. It is no crime to be wealthy if that wealth has been acquired honestly. The fraudulent acquisition of wealth, and the wrongful use of money for any purpose, are confessedly evils, to be condemned by all right-minded men. But Mr. Bryan and his followers have no exclusive right to denounce these evils, nor are they the sole possessors and custodians of all the political virtue to be found in the country.

If there are fewer men of wealth in the Bryanite party, in proportion to numbers, than are found in the Republican party, the cause is not far to seek. The course which Mr. Bryan and other leaders of that party have pursued during the past few years has been well calculated to drive Democrats of wealth and influence out of the party. Discussing this subject, the New York Evening Post well says:

"The truth is that the Democratic party has threatened the rich men who have been attached to it by birth, by tradition and by belief, with the loss of their property, in part by the use of bad money, and in part by an impairment of the safeguards which the judicial system throws around rich and poor alike. It is needless to recur to the planks in their platform, or to the speeches of their candidate, in which these menacing policies are embodied. It is sufficient to show that the party is itself at fault for the loss of its rich men. Whatever loss it has suffered in this regard is due to its own incessate folly. This is the reason why so many Democrats of position and character are saying, 'We intend to defeat the party so badly that it will abandon its attacks upon the gold standard, upon the judicial system, and upon social order. When it does so, when it returns to the ancient moorings, and becomes once more the party of Jefferson, Jackson, Tilden and Cleveland, we will return to it, and give it victory if we can.'"

If Mr. Bryan and his adherents are wise in their generation they will abandon their efforts to stir up class hatred. They can never win upon a platform of hate and falsehood. The American people are too intelligent and too progressive to be misled by such shallow sophistries to the extent of intrusting the control of the national government to men who deal in that sort of political merchandise.

Speaking of elections, it is just fifty-one years ago tomorrow since the first constitutional election was held in California. The total vote for Governor was 14,213, of which P. H. Burnett received 6783; W. S. Sherwood, 3220; J. A. Sutter, 2201, and J. W. Geary, 1358.

A Whittier man now comes forward claiming to have been chased by an immense mountain lion in the highways and byways and through the jungles of that neck of the woods. It is altogether too early after election to see cats of such tremendous size.

Grover Cleveland may not be entirely satisfied with the result of the recent election, but there is no doubt that he is better satisfied than he was at any time after the Kansas City convention and before the election.

Bryan has declined a steady job on a Denver paper at a salary of $10,000 a year. It makes one shudder to think of the amount of space he would have given to his pet paramount issues had he accepted the position.

WHY BILDAD'S "PAW" LOOKS SAD.

You'd orter see the gloomy look that covers my paw's face;
He's out there on the back porch now, a-lookin' into space.
It ain't a single bit o' use to try an' cheer paw up—
He's jist ez cross an' ugly ez a brindle bulldog pup;
An' ev'ry time paw goes down town the folks all laff at him,
An' talk so blamed sarcastic that my paw ain't in the swim.
The reason paw's so rattled that he don't know where he's at,
Is cuz he changed his politics an' voted Demmycrat.

Paw jist sits there an' shakes his fist,
An' maw ses that she can't resist
The fun uv laffin' at paw, jist
Becus he'd vote fer Bryan!

Paw started into politics a month er two ago,
An' ev'ry nite when he'd come home he'd preach a tale uv woe.
The "country was a runnin' down;" McKinley "wus no good"—
You never heard a crazy man expound like my paw would.
He'd talk about the army that "wus runnin' us in debt,"
An' say "McKinley'd have us in the county poorhouse yet;"
He'd claim that on election nite they'd "knock McKinley flat;"
But paw hez learned a heap o' things by votin' Demmycrat.

Paw looks so gosh a-mighty blue,
Maw ses she don't know what he'll do—
He bit off more than he kin chew
By votin' fer Bill Bryan!

Paw claimed the "orful octupus" that some folks called a "trust,"
Wus what wus makin' small concerns around the country bust.
He sed that Bryan "wus the man to put these robbers down,"
An' ev'ry vote that Bryan got would "do the job up brown;"
But maw remarked the other day she didn't think 'twus nice
Fer Bryan to condemn all trusts, except the trust in ice,
Then paw he hemmed an' hawed around an' sed that he'd stan' pat,
An' see what happened, jist the same, by votin' Demmycrat.

You'd orter heard my paw expound
When he could git a crowd around!
The "country would be safe an' sound
If men would vote fer Bryan."

Election nite paw went down town a-feelin' mighty gay;
He sed he knew the Demmycrats would surely win the day;
But when he come a-creepin' in along about midnight,
Maw 'lowed election hadn't gone with paw exactly right—
Oh, paw looks mighty lonesome—it wus sich a big surprise;
The way McKinley carried things jist opened up his eyes.
Maw sed she knew that Billy Boy wus "talkin' through his hat"—
You bet she's got a josh on paw for votin' Demmycrat!

If you jist want to hear paw swear,
An' whoop an' yell an' paw the air,
Jist go out where he's ravin' there,
An' ask him "how is Bryan?"

ADMIRAL RICHARD'S VISIT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Admiral E. Richards, commanding the French fleet now in American waters, arrived here today from Baltimore for a visit of several days. Accompanying the admiral are two members of his staff, Commanders Z. E. Guhel and P. E. Bris, and his aide, Y. Doman. The visitors are staying at the Shoreham Hotel during their brief sojourn in the city. Tomorrow they will make formal calls on the President and Secretary of the Navy.

AT THE THEATERS.

HAZARD'S PAVILION. The production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which will be presented at Hazard's Pavilion tonight and tomorrow night, with a special matinée tomorrow at 3 o'clock, is on a scale never before witnessed in this city. Among the scenic effects used are the apotheosis, and the ascent of Eva to the realm of bliss, borne by angels; the Pearly Gates and the stairway to the home beyond the skies; the Ohio River in the midwinter by moonlight; a southern paradise at sunset; allegorical scenes, typical of the birth of liberty and blessing of little children; the weird Rocky Pass; the realistic cotton plantation.

LOS ANGELES THEATER. The great Herrmann, the adept in the art of magic, will amuse, mystify and delight theater-goers of this city at the Los Angeles Theater tonight. Many incomprehensible feats of magic are performed by him with a charm of manner and a running fire of wit, that would lure a confirmed cynic into admiration. For his present engagement in this city he brings many novelties that have never before been seen in this country.

RIPPLES OF MIRTH.

Getting Prominent.

[Puck:] "Blowhard has a big opinion of himself."

"How big?"

"Well, he's beginning to imagine he's annoyed by camera fields."

Unanswerable.

[Ohio State Journal:] (Mrs. Hibbitts:) Where were you last night, my dear?

(Mr. Hibbitts:) Really, my love, I don't know—I had no guide book.

A Deeper Disguise.

[Detroit Journal:] (Sergeant:) Shall I detail an officer in citizen's clothes?

(Captain:) It won't do to have his identity suspected. Better detail an officer with citizen's manners, to make assurance doubly sure.

He Had the Floor.

[Atlanta Constitution:] "What de news f'um Marse William at de capital?" asked the colored constituent.

"Well, the paper says that he 'has the floor.'"

"De goodness gracious! Is he drunk already?"

A Gentle Hint.

[Tit-Bits:] (He, enthusiastically:) I love everything that is grand, beautiful, poetic and lovely. I love the peerless, the serene and the perfect in life.

(She:) How you must love me, darling; why did you not propose before?

Smashed His Poetry.

[Atlanta Constitution:] "Father," said the poetical youth, "how can you behold, unmoved, the glory of the autumn woods?"

"I don't," replied the old man, "an' I move right now that you take this here ax an' cut me 'bout ten cords o' wood outen 'em. So jerk yer coat and light in."

Cultured Echo.

[Syracuse Herald:] (Snarley:) Say, that Boston town is a wonder.

(Yow:) What's the matter now?

(Snarley:) Why, I was there last week. Some friends took me out to Back Bay to hear an echo. I howled "Holy Smoke" at it, and what do you suppose it answered?

(Yow:) Give it up.

(Snarley:) It hollered back "Incense!"

Timely Warning.

[Chicago Times-Herald:] "Now, see here," said the Adirondack guide, "I want you to understand that you are never to get twenty feet away from me. Keep right up close, and don't you dare to wander off. See?"

"But why this peculiar caution?" inquired the man who was out for big game.

"Well," said the guide shortly, "I'm too young, and I've got too big a family depending on me, to be mistaken for a deer."

Repentant.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] "You say your wife threw a plate at you?"

"Yes, it was a fine china plate. It broke against my head."

"Didn't she appear sorry after she threw it?"

"Yes, she appeared very sorry."

"Ah, indeed. And what did she say?"

"She said she was a fool not to control her temper."

"Good. And what else did she say?"

"She said she didn't believe she could match that plate again if she hunted the town through."

ALL ALONG THE LINE.

A big rose show will be held in San Francisco next May.

The Santa Clara Valley poultry show will open this week.

A big hotel is to be built at Alum Rock Park, near San José.

Casturis Lugo, 100 years old, a native Indian squaw, died at San Bernardino Saturday.

Visalia shooting men have organized a sportsman's club. Game protection is the object.

Several girls employed in a cannery at Haywards as labelers are on a strike, because they cannot get better pay.

Because one workman did not belong to a union, sixty boiler-makers walked out of the Southern Pacific Company's boiler-making department.

The work of remodeling the camp at the Presidio preparatory to receiving the 35,000 volunteers now in the Philippines, has been discontinued, as it is not known when the soldiers will return to this country.

The State Board of Horticulture is desirous that exhibits of cured fruits be made at the State Fruit Growers' Convention, which will be held at San Francisco beginning Tuesday, December 4, and continuing four days.

A couple named Klock of San Francisco have just been divorced. They started to run each other down and finally went on a strike, and the wife wound things up by saying she wouldn't live another minute with Mr. Klock.

E. G. Galbreath, a Highland rancher, has entered complaint that certain people have deprived him of forty-five inches of water to which he is entitled, and which he has been in the habit of diverting from the ditch which skirts his place. His oranges, apricots and prunes depend on this water, and he asks for $5000 for damages to the crop.

DRIVEN ASHORE BY TYPHOON.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—According to the Hongkong correspondent of the Daily Mail, the American ship Benjamin Sewall, Capt. A. M. Sewall, which arrived at Hongkong prior to September 29 from Freemantle, where she left August 8, was driven ashore during the typhoon Friday night.

MAKING BRIQUETTES.

A European Art of Utilizing Coal Dust Which America is Now Trying to Imitate.

[New York Tribune:] The art of cementing pulverized coal together and molding the paste into blocks for fuel has long been practiced with profit in Europe, and the industry has developed there to large proportions, especially in the continent. Coal briquettes, as the product of this operation is called, are extensively used on the railways of France and Belgium. A number of the ocean liners employ the same kind of fuel. And it is reported that the French government has contracted for a supply of it from England. Two years ago Westphalia alone produced no less than 1,800,000 tons of briquettes; and it is estimated that the combined output of European countries for 1900 will exceed 20,000,000 tons.

In America a large number of attempts have been made to follow the example of foreign countries, but for various reasons most of these efforts proved unsuccessful from either a scientific or a commercial point of view. The appalling waste of valuable material which was represented by the piles of culm at the mouths of the mines was fully recognized, but somehow the Yankee genius, so triumphant in other industries, seemed at fault in this one. Since 1837 more than a hundred patents have been granted for making briquettes; and this figure probably indicates only a small portion of the schemes which have been tried. Scores of Americans living today have nearly ruined themselves financially by investments in such experiments.

At the very close of the century, however, success seems to have been achieved. There is in Chicago a coal briquetting plant that has apparently solved the problem, and solved it more effectually than has been done in Europe. Theoretically, making briquettes is a simple process. Something to bind the particles together is needed, and on the other side of the Atlantic cheap pitch, refuse left by coke ovens, is employed for that purpose. It is admitted that from 8 to 10 per cent. of binder is used in Europe, and it seems probable that an even larger proportion is commonly employed. But effective binding material in America is more expensive than on the other side of the Atlantic. And it has hitherto been regarded as necessary to use 12 or 15 per cent., which would cost altogether too much, or else to use so little that the briquette would not be firmly cemented together.

The plan which has finally been adopted in this country is to introduce a small quantity of lime, and thus make possible a reduction in the amount of pitch required. At Chicago only 5 per cent. is put into the compound. The proportion of lime is 2 per cent. The latter material has been used extensively to consolidate pulverized metallic ores into briquettes, and gives very satisfactory results. The innovation here indicated makes a harder briquette, and thus prevents immediate disintegration when the fuel begins to burn. The wear and tear of transportation is also successfully resisted. It is said that there is less waste with it than with anthracite. Again, the diminished percentage of pitch practically does away with the smoke emitted by other briquettes. In both respects the American article appears to be distinctly superior to the foreign, and at the same time it is cheap enough to yield a profit to the producer.

The procedure at Chicago may be briefly outlined as follows: Illinois soft coal is the principal ingredient of the briquettes, although a small proportion of anthracite is sometimes introduced. If the industry were established here in the East, hard coal would be employed instead. What is called "slack" coal is used. This is washed, to eliminate the sulphur. Slate, too, is rejected. The coal is fed into a crusher, which reduces it to dust, and is then carried automatically to a heater, where its temperature is raised to 180 or 200 deg. Fahr. The heating process promotes the subsequent adhesion of its binder to the coal, and the temperature mentioned is fully 400 deg. below that at which the coal would ignite.

On an upper floor are placed, side by side, a hopper holding several tons of the pulverized and heated coal, carried thither by an elevator; two tanks containing bitumen, and a receptacle in which is slaked lime, combined with enough water to give it the consistency of cream. The bitumen in one of the tanks is cold. In the other its temperature is raised to about 350 deg. The room also contains weighing apparatus and a mixer capable of holding a charge of 1000 pounds or more. There the ingredients are put together, after very precise measurements to insure the correct proportions. The mixture now falls through a passage to the floor below, where it is formed into briquettes.

The press employed in this operation has a substantial wheel, on whose flat periphery are a number of cups or pockets. These are molds into which the paste is fed. Another wheel, with which the first comes in contact, has corresponding indentations. The two are so adjusted that they exert a tremendous pressure upon the plastic material while it is inclosed in the molds. The squeeze amounts to about five tons to the square inch.

The shape of the briquettes can be varied, of course, as may be desired. At first the Chicago people adopted an oval form, but subsequently changed to a square cake with rounded edges and corners. The older briquettes weighed about six ounces each; the new ones weigh five and a half. In size they correspond pretty closely to "small egg" coal, and they burn readily in open grates, ranges and furnaces.

The output of this press is about ten tons an hour, or 200 tons a day. This would be equivalent to 60,000 tons a year, though the plant has been in operation only a few months. Its managers contend, too, that there is no other successful briquette factory in America. It thus apepars that while Europe makes about one ton of briquettes for every twenty tons of coal she mines, and has been engaged in the industry for many years, the United States at present produces about one ton of briquettes to every 3000 or 3500 tons of coal mined, and has only just made a start. However, the Chicago plant is about to be enlarged, and already there is serious talk of starting another in the East.

A Legal Quibble.

[Chicago Tribune:] "There is a story," the doctor said, "of a man who was sued for debt not long ago. The case went against him, and the Court gave judgment for $200. His lawyer told him he would have to pay it, as he was an unmarried man. He hustled out, and in a few hours came back with a wife and a plea in due form that he needed his salary for the support of his family. He got off free."

"I don't believe that was constitutional," said the professor, after a moment's reflection.

"Why not?"

"Because it was annex post facto."

And amid the profound silence that followed, the ear could faintly distinguish the sounds of rioting and carnage in the office buildings adjacent, where desperate men were taking straw votes on McKinley and Bryan.

Don't Mention It.

[Philadelphia Press:] (Tess:) Mr. Popprey is just hateful!

(Jess:) What has he been doing to you?

(Tess:) He gave me his seat in the car today, and then, leaning over, said: "I beg your pardon. I must be getting hard of hearing; but you're very welcome."

A Question of Tactics.

[Indianapolis Journal:] "Ma, am I goin' to get 'nother plate of i' scream 'sides this un?"

"Why, little Jim?"

"'Cause, ma, I wan' to know whether to gobble this un up or drag it out."

At the Churches Yesterday.

Dr. Mackenzie.

SYMBOLICAL of this theme were the floral decorations of pure white clematis, at the First Presbyterian Church yesterday. Rev. Robert Mackenzie, D.D., of the First Presbyterian Church, San Francisco, and a professor in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, occupied the pulpit and took his text from Luke xviii, 13: "God be merciful to me, a sinner."

"When I see a congregation come reverently and sit expectantly," said Dr. Mackenzie, "I feel that the service, the songs and the sermon should give each waiting heart a better idea of God. There are different sources from which we derive our idea of God: the Book of God, the book of nature and the book of conscience. From these we glean what is God.

"Man seldom lives up to the measure of his being. He sees through a glass dimly and distorts what he sees. Man has never shown the depth of error into which he may sink himself, as in the proven images he may create for himself.

"I have wandered through the museums of antiquity and have spent a whole day looking at the gods which people made for themselves in Greece and Rome, and I never noticed a smile on the face of but one, and that was Bacchus.

"Sin runs like a red thread through the whole book, wraps itself around the cross of Christ and throws out its frayed edges to the very birds of the Bible.

"Without the Bible we can get no idea of sin and its consequences. There is nothing in Milton, nothing in the illustrations of Dore, to compare with that given us by the Bible. It is not necessary that a man should look into the Bible, nor down the street of this city, but down into his own heart.

"God is merciful. You say, 'all men know it.' All men you know may know it, but there are millions in other lands who have never caught a glimpse of the fact that God is merciful to a sinner. Mercy begins on the same page with sin, before it and after it; wraps its white thread around the red thread of sin, and at last it is the incarnate mercy of God.

"When the world goes bad with you, as it sometimes does, when health is breaking, what a mercy it is to know that God knoweth our frailties and pitieth His children."

Kingdom of God.

REV. C. J. K. JONES preached yesterday morning in the Church of the Unity, 923 and 925 South Flower street, on "The Kingdom of God." He said in part: "In the usual definition of the expression, 'The Kingdom of God' there is conveyed the idea of an especially favored condition, and relation of a few, the small minority of the children of men to the Divine Being. It also means an especially kindly relation and attitude of the Divine mind toward this favored minority. The particular 'Kingdom of God,' as defined by the people who claim most of the benefits and privileges thereof, as their prerogative, both here and hereafter, is said to have come to earth with the advent of a boy-babe, born to Jewish parents living in the hill-town of Nazareth, in Palestine, some nineteen hundred years ago. We are answered by our friends that the birth of this babe signalized an especial event in the history of the earth, even the incarnation of the Supreme Ruler of the universe. It is hardly necessary to say this event was an occurrence before the days of astronomical and biological science. For most intelligently thoughtful people in these days, there is great need to prove the unprovable proposition that men have ever been without a Kingdom of God. Whatever their religious belief and practice; or theologically speaking, that they are or ever have been, lost in sin and iniquity. All credible testimony of nature and of man, past and present, bears witness that man has not descended from the perfect of a golden age, but that he has been ascending throughout his history, from a low animal type, towards a high intellectual, and ethical being. There is not a particle of believable evidence to warrant our thinking for one moment, that we, or any man, is under the ban of a divine displeasure: or that anything of evil comes, or can come, from the Divine displeasure, either here or hereafter.

"The expression 'Kingdom of God' arose when men were at that stage of culture wherein they believed that all phenomena and agencies of matter in all life were due to the actions of spirits, divine or satanic. So there was a 'Kingdom of God,' and a 'Kingdom of Satan,' and these were always at war with each other, for the possession and direction of man. Men and women of the liberal Christian faith, have long ago given up the conviction that spirit agencies are the immediate force controlling nature's phenomena. But in this surrender of the old faith of the times of ignorance, we have gained infinitely more than we have lost, for we now perceive that 'the Kingdom of God' possesses all men, whereof Jesus and all great religious heroes are the highest exponents."

What Makes a Man?

IN speaking of the qualities of a manly man, yesterday morning, at Christ Episcopal Church, Rev. Dr. George Thomas Dowling said: "One of the prime requisites should be a certain masterfulness, in the best sense of that word; an ability to grasp opposing circumstances, as David wrestled with the lion and the bear, when they came to rend the flock, and down them. Thus he becomes, naturally, the warrior to fight; he is the provider, the defender. Of course I am speaking of the rule, and not of the exception. If a man is only 5 feet high, and the woman is 5 feet 6 inches, she will be the taller, St. Paul, and all the preachers in Christendom notwithstanding. But such cases are sporadic. They are not according to nature.

"And this is what the apostle means when he says that the man is the head of the woman. He is the head. If he is the pioneer, the warrior and explorer, his is the practical provision to see; the brain, more experienced with affairs of the world with which to plan. And this does not derogate from her; it is a tribute to her. The Sovereign of the Hearth ought to be her protector, her provider, the fighter in her behalf if need be. Neither does this interfere with that subtle influence over him which makes the true woman, the most potent force in his life. This is the beautiful feature in a real marriage. He is the head; but the head is not the whole body. I think we might say, that she is the neck, and I have seldom found a neck who could not turn the head when she really chose to do it. But the apostle's idea, if carried out, would be that both head and neck, should receive their impulse from the warm throbbing life-blood of the heart.

"And thus the obedience on her part, to which the apostle refers, and which our marriage service demands, is not the unwilling obedience of one who has found a master; but the glad allegiance of one who has found a rest. I think it is safe to say that the true woman will glory in finding a resting place in the practical superiority of her husband, just as the true man will glory in finding a resting place in the domestic superiority of his wife.

"'Wives, obey your husbands.' But that is not the whole of the command. Who is the husband whom she is to obey? 'Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it.' Show me that kind of husband, and in the vast majority of instances I will show you the right kind of wife.

"So that this is one of the first requisites, in determining whether or not you shall accept a suitor for your hand. Is he masterful? Has he the elements of accomplishment? Or is he only a graceful ship; pretty to look at, but with no boiler power; a human derelict, tossing on the waves with no ability to reach the harbor?"

Economic Value of Religion.

WILEY J. PHILLIPS gave the last of his series of addresses to men at the regular meeting of the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon. His theme was "The Economic Value of the Christian Religion," and he said in part:

"A great many men have the idea that Christianity amounts to very little so far as this world is concerned. They consider it a good thing with which to bridge the chasm to the great beyond. They base all its value in the hope that it brings of a life beyond the grave. With such men it is customary to associate Christianity with a long face, with dirt and rags. These things are called humility. The humility that the Bible teaches is the humility of unselfishness. The question which is most often asked nowadays is 'How can I better my condition?' The elemental principle of prosperity is something beyond human policy. Tell me what religion a country believes in and practices, and I will tell you what you can get in that country for a day's work. Religious ideas underlie all civil government and determine all economic questions."

Continuing, Mr. Phillips showed the close connection between the wages paid, the percentage of illiteracy, the sanitary condition of a people and the religion which is preponderant in a given country. The countries where Christianity is prevalent were found to excel in every particular.

The address was well received by a large audience of men. The Euterpean Male Quartette and the male chorus directed by Prof. Dupuy furnished the music.

A Dream Fulfilled.

REV. J. S. THOMSON, pastor of the Independent Church of Christ, in the Simpson Auditorium, preached on "Nebuchadnezzar's Dream and its Fulfillment," from the text, "Thy kingdom shall be sure unto thee after that thou shalt have known that the heavens do rule," Daniel iv, 26. "Nebuchadnezzar," he said, "was very successful in war, and in the management of his great empire; but he became proud, tyrannical and cruel. He needed an experience that would have qualified him to be a wise and merciful ruler. He resolved, after profound study of his position and relationships to separate himself from all his royal connections and luxuries, and to live among the toiling and poor classes of his empire, in order to learn how to govern his people wisely and morally. Peter the Great of Russia in several respects followed the example of Nebuchadnezzar. He lived and worked among the ox-peoples, the strong, obedient and toiling classes, until he gained a practical knowledge of their needs, aims and conditions, and until he realized that the Most High is the invisible ruler of nations. The feathers, the claws, and the dews of heaven, symbolize the blessings of God upon His life, and the development of His reason and spirit. The eagle signifies the spiritual feature of the cross. He rose from the ox-nature to the eagle-nature, and then acknowledged God. The stump of the tree was preserved, and he returned to his former royal position and glory. The immortal spirit of man is safe in heaven. He cannot lose his spirit or being. Christ's home in glory, which He had before the foundation of the world, was secure to Him, when He was on earth. Wayward and disobedient children revert to the conservatism of their family and race after suffering. The extreme kingdom which belongs to every human being will come into his possession again, after he has been purged from his iniquities by bearing the cross of Christ."

Life and Death.

REV. PHILIP JAMES WARD preached yesterday at the Central Baptist Church, corner of Flower and Pico streets, from the text: "We are unto God a sweet savor of Christ, in those that are saved and in them that perish." Mr. Ward said, in part:

"God's ideal of a true Christian minister is that he should spread abroad at all times and places a savor of Christ. The ministry has in the last analysis one great message to the world, and that message is Christ, and according as that message is received or rejected men make their own final destiny and they are either saved or they perish. The word of God makes a sharp distinction between those whose souls are being saved and those whose souls are perishing, rightly ignoring in the final great estimate the many petty distinctions of time and place which may exist now, and plainly shows that all who have heard the gospel are in the solemn judicial aspects of their case before God either condemned already for not accepting the gospel or are saved by it. The gospel becomes a savor of death to death when men grow presumptuous, because of the marvelous love it exhibits and also when they continue to sin because of the far-reaching pardon which it offers. In spiritual and eternal things it is the same as with things temporal and natural, the greatest blessings being perverted become the greatest curses."

Pentecostal Prayer Union.

AT THE Pentecostal Prayer Union yesterday afternoon the First United Presbyterian Church, Eighth and Hill streets, Rev. H. C. Waddell spoke on the subject of "Unity as the Law of Prayer," from Matthew xviii, 19: "That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven."

"In the words of the text," he said, "Jesus directs the attention of His disciples to the law of unity as the law of prayer, and fixes the condition to this requirement at the minimum, the two agreed. A failure to apprehend this law of unity hinders the power and understanding of prayer. The unity here referred to is only to be found in the Holy Spirit, is not a condition to be sought in the mind, but in the heart. The two agreed may not be able to agree about anything else save the thing they are asking. There is only one bond of unity, in the crucified Christ—dead to self—an unselfish root, one from which the bond of union springs or it cannot live. The oneness of accord is in Jesus' name, in touch with the prayer spirit of the divine throne, and it is only possible to pray in His name as we abide in the cross. If we are willing to be emptied, God will fill us; as we cease to live for ourselves, we find the glory of living for others, and the highest expression of the unselfish life to God for others, name for the outpouring upon all the saints and of all believers as He Father. All heaven is of the prayer that God."

Utility of Public Worship.

ON SUNDAY morning Pierce at the Church spoke on "The Public Worship," taking brews x:25 "Forsake not bling of yourselves together."

He said: "I am often out the value of public is its value? Would if it were abandoned?

"First of all, it brings who are of one mind; is strength. PERRIS SCHOOL GETS A SETBACK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Commissioner of Indian Affairs Jones, in his annual report, makes the following statement regarding the Perris Indian School and the proposed new Indian school at Riverside:

"Owing to the unfavorable location of the site it has been decided that the Indian school at Perris, Cal., cannot be made an industrial school for Southern California, as was contemplated. Failure of water, unsuitableness of soil and climatic conditions are such that while it is not the purpose of this office to discontinue the school, it is yet undesirable to ask Congress for a large appropriation to transfer it into a well-equipped training school. For the present it will be conducted as an Indian boarding school.

"The scholastic population of this portion of California is about 1200, and it can readily be seen that Perris is a profitable field for the educational influence of a large training school. Congress recognized these conditions, and provided in the Indian Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1901, 'for the establishment, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, of an Indian school at or near Riverside, Cal., provided that a suitable site can be obtained there for a reasonable sum, and be selected by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior.' For the purchase of land, erection of buildings, and for other purposes necessary to establish a complete school plant upon the new site, $75,000 was appropriated.

"In pursuance of this, United States Supervisor of Schools Frank M. Conser was in June last ordered to make an investigation of all available sites, and in an elaborate report he recommended an ideal one on Magnolia avenue, about five and one-half miles from the center of the city of Riverside and three-fourths of a mile from the Arlington station on the Santa Fe Railroad. Negotiations have satisfactorily progressed, and plans are now under consideration for the plant."

[If the Commissioner of Indian Affairs should visit Perris and see the water gushing out of the pumping plants there he would withdraw one of his arguments against establishing a "well-equipped training school" in that town, and the rest of his theory would disappear with a candid study of the situation at short range, unhampered by the attentions of the Riverside push. The Times has fully exposed the job by which Congress was buncoed into making an appropriation for an new Indian school at Riverside, which will cost taxpayers five times the amount of the original appropriation before the work is completed. The plot began with an attempt to remove Indian Agent Wright because he could not be made a tool of the plotters, but this part of the scheme failed. Although Mr. Hall, the superintendent of the Perris school, was not able to get the agency, the social ambitions of his family are gratified through the selection of this "ideal site" at Riverside for the new school—"ideal," because the young Indians can go to the theater and learn to play golf with the "four hundred" of the citrus city, while the superintendent's family will also be in the swim.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs is not the only one who was fooled. In a recent visit to Perris, Congressman Needham expressed his surprise at the abundance of water, excellence of the soil and other industrial advantages of Perris, and declared that if he had been acquainted with the facts he could not have recommended any change in location of a school which is not supposed to train Indians in the arts of a country club but to school them in the ways of earning a living.—Ed. [illegible] LIGHT.

[illegible] Glow Upon the Sea [illegible] Stale Sea Fish is Due to [illegible].

[[illegible] CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, November 3.—The [illegible] that bacteria can now be cultivated [illegible] will emit a phosphorescent [illegible] suggests interesting possibilities. [illegible] phosphorescent microbe if properly [illegible] will grow and multiply enormously, [illegible] during its development a peculiar shining quality. This light has [illegible] been looked upon as indicating [illegible] presence of phosphorous, but in a [illegible] number of cases it is not due to [illegible] chemical change, but to countless [illegible] organisms. The phosphorescence [illegible] the sea is a case in point. This [illegible] phosphorescence is greatest when the [illegible] is disturbed and the maximum of [illegible] is emitted from the crest of a [illegible] wave, or in the foam produced by the water striking the shore. [illegible] light in this instance may be increased by the addition of a combus[illegible] such as sugar, the light [illegible] caused by the oxidation of the [illegible]. If oxygen be excluded the [illegible] is at once quenched. The glow [illegible] upon stale sea fish is also due to [illegible] and not to phosphor[illegible] and it is now possible to cultivate [illegible] phosphorescent bacteria, so as to [illegible] a strongly phosphorescent fluid. [illegible] may be done by placing the flesh [illegible] or herring in a 3 to 3 per cent. solution of common salt, and keeping it at a low temperature, say 7 deg. above freezing. In a few days it will be found that not only the fish, but the liquid, give off a pale greenish light which becomes more brilliant if sugar be added. There has not yet, however, been suggested any method of turning this phosphorescent quality to practical account.

Black Tailor Suitings $3 the yd.
One of the best ways to judge fashion is by what we sell and the quantity. Just now the wide demand is for heavy cloths that can be tailored, and the usual quantity is 4½ to 5 yards of cloth 56 inches broad, which means short skirts, an inch or so from the ground, and jackets. The news this morning of black tailor suitings is right in line with the demand. Six sorts that have heretofore sold from $3.25 to $4.25 the yard go on sale at $3.00 as per the following schedule:
59-inch black herringbone cheviots, was $3.25 yard.
61-inch English worsted, was $3.50 the yard.

The local cycle-racing season is on! At the Velodrome track last evening the first of the season's meets drew one of the largest crowds that ever assembled in that popular place of entertainment, and better still all seemed well satisfied with what was handed out, in the way of fast and sensational contests.

Jack Prince, the genial manager of the track, was not the master of ceremonies as in days of yore, but found it difficult to live down the smiles that would come to the surface. He glowed when he looked at the crowd, but the crowning of his enjoyment came when it was announced that a world's record had been smashed.

This was in the fifteen-mile match race between Johnny Nelson, the champion middle-distance king, and H. B. Stone who hails from Denver, but is out of hailing distance when matched with Nelson. As a race, the match was without interest, but as an exhibition of Johnny Nelson it filled the bill.

In this event, which was motor-paced, Nelson took the lead from the tape and was never headed, clipping the fifteen miles off in 25 minutes 49 1-5 seconds, announced as a new world's record for the distance under similar conditions. Nelson rode in fine form, making one mile in 1:34, and another in 1:35, and having no trouble in keeping a line on his pace which he clung to as though part of the machine

Stone seemed to have all the pace he could carry, but was game to the end, and, sweating like five cents' worth of lard in a paper bag, he steamed into the roundhouse six laps behind the winner.

The time by miles for this race was as follows: One mile, 1:47¾; two miles, 3:23¼; three miles, 4:55¾; four miles, 6:38; five miles, 8:21; six miles, 10:07⅛; seven miles, 11:52¾; eight miles, 13:38¼; nine miles, 15:25; ten miles, 17:12¾; eleven miles, 19:00, twelve miles, 20:46¾; thirteen miles, 23:33; fourteen miles, 24:27; fifteen miles, 25:49 1-5.

MILE PROFESSIONAL.

There were two qualifying heats and a final in the one-mile professional which brought out a fine field of starters. The first heat went to R. D. Mussey of this city, who rode the distance in 2:08. Roy Hodgert of Salt Lake was second and Gus Lawson third.

The second heat was won by Clem Turville, 30 yards, in 2:03. Jed Newkirk of Chicago rode from scratch and took second with J. W. Austin, 125 yards, third.

Gus Lawson captured the final in this race, beating A. T. Bell, who won second, with Hodgert third; time 2:12 4-5.

AMATEUR HANDICAP.

The amateur handicap was captured by A. C. Muff, who was riding in fine form. In the first heat of this race, Fred Dee, with thirty yards, crossed the tape first, Dean Cromwell, forty yards, second and F. Florentine, twenty-five yards, third.

F. J. Hoffman from scratch rode the mile in the second heat in 2:03 3-5. Isadore Cohn, with thirty-five yards, was second and F. Bates, ninety yards, third.

Muff took the final with West second, and Hoffman third. Up to the stretch it was Bates's race, but for some reason he was unable to keep up the pace.

One of the most exciting races of the evening was the two-mile motor race, in which two crack teams of the last eastern circuit were matched. This event was won by Stone and Judge, who claim to be the champions of the world. They made the distance in 2:39 4-5. Blanchard and Rule were a close second, doing the distance in 3:00 3-5.

Gus Lawson made an effort to break the track record for one mile, but was unsuccessful, going the distance in 1:37.

NORTHERN CYCLE RACE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—In the five-mile road race of the California Cycling Club today Tom White, riding from the scratch mark, secured first time [illegible] and C. L. Braun took first place prize, crossing the line a fifth of a second ahead of Frank Carroll. Time, White, 12:32; Braun (20 seconds handicap,) 12:45; Carroll (20 seconds handicap) 12:45 1-5. The other fifteen riders were well bunched. G. Hitchcock fell and sustained a serious scalp wound.

The Academic League will hold its annual twenty-five-mile relay race next Saturday, using the San Leandro roadway as the course.

YACHTSMEN'S WORLD.

AMERICA'S CUP IN DANGER.

It is evident from the shift of the wind that the interest of English yachtsmen will be centered next year on the racing courses of the United States more than on their own. Of course the great event of the season will be the battle for the America's Cup. Capt. George W. Eldridge, who was pilot on the Columbia last year, said recently, according to the New York Tribune: "The America's Cup will be in danger, and for the first time next season." When asked if he did not think more boats should be built for the defense of the cup, he answered: "Most assuredly. I suppose I am about as poor as they make, but I would put up a few hundred dollars to see a defender designed by Crowninshield." Many yachtsmen would follow Capt. Eldridge's lead in this, not only among the eastern clubs, where B. B. Crowninshield has so many advocates, but also among the New York yachtsmen, who have had an opportunity to see what this designer's output is capable of. Since the announcement of Commodore Ledyard that a cup defender would certainly be built, yachtsmen seem to feel that there is no further necessity of combining funds to produce a boat to enter the trial races with the Ledyard boat and the Columbia.

In a recent interview Sir Thomas Lipton, in speaking of the coming race, declared that the Shamrock II is going to be a wonderful boat. He said: "This time we have got the best that can be got in the way of skill and brains to design the best boat that this country can produce. Last year's failure did us good, and we have learned lessons which we will profit by. Willie Jamison, the first yachtsman in this country has agreed to assume chief command, and will be assisted by Capt. Sycamore."

LOCAL BALL.

PACIFICS DEFEATS VENTURA.

The ball game at Fiesta Park yesterday afternoon proved uninteresting in the extreme. The weather was hot and the players seemed not to care which side won. Adams and Farrow both pitched well, and Whaling made his reappearance and caught Adams in good style. Johnson played good first base for Ventura, and the others did the best they could. How it all happened follows:

The managers of the new ball grounds at Washington Gardens are doing everything to make the new park comfortable for their patrons. All the seats will be well shaded, and there will be retiring rooms for the ladies, in charge of a lady attendant. The new grand stand will have all the advantages of any up-to-date eastern park.

The regular winter season will open December 9, between the two home teams. One or two exhibitions may be played there before the opening of the regular season. The eastern players are arriving daily and the stars from the California league will be here when their season closes December 2.

Henry Harris, the manager of the San Francisco team, is expected in this city this week, when he and Manager Morley expect to arrange the preliminaries as to the schedule and other details for the admission of this city in the California League next season.

Harry Steinfeldt, third baseman of the Cincinnati League club, arrived here Friday. He has many friends who admired his playing when he was on Manager Morley's team in this city three years ago. He was a revelation then, but now has the advantage of three years' experience in the big league, with the reputation of being the best throwing third baseman in the business.

CHAMPIONS MAY COME.

President Comisky, of the American League's Chicago team, will next spring take his champions on an extended training trip, leaving early in March for the City of Mexico and spending from three to five weeks in the conditioning process. He may be induced to come to this city. A series of exhibition games will be played at the City of Mexico, Phoenix, Ariz.; Galveston, Fort Worth and Waco, Tex.; St. Louis and Cincinnati on the return journey.

SACRAMENTOS FARE BADLY.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—The Sacramento baseball players fared badly today at the hands of the San Francisco team. In the forenoon they were whitwashed at Oakland, and in the afternoon at Recreation Park they lost by a score of five to three. Both games were umpired by George Van Haltren, and no protest was made against any of his decisions. Score:

Morning game:
San Francisco, 8; hits, 12; errors, 1.
Sacramento, 0; hits, 1; errors, 1.
Batteries—Fitzpatrick and Sullivan; Devereaux and Stanley.
Afternoon game:
San Francisco, 5; hits, 10; errors, 3.
Sacramento, 3; hits, 7; errors, 4.
Batteries — Knell and Sullivan; Hughes and Stanley.
Umpire—Van Haltren.

DOUBLE DEFEAT FOR STOCKTON.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

STOCKTON, Nov. 11.—Oakland took two falls out of Stockton today by a score of 6 to 5 and 6 to 2, respectively. Moring, an amateur, had a bad attack of stage fright and gave three hits, and six passes in the first inning of the second game, and was replaced by Harper. Darkness stopped the game at the sixth. Score:

First game:
Stockton, 5; hits, 8; errors, 3.
Oakland, 6; hits, 10; errors, 4.
Batteries—Johnson and Graham; Borchers and Lohman.
Umpire—McDonald.
Second game:

Oakland, 6; hits, 8; errors, 0.
Batteries—Harper, Moring and Graham; Moskiman and Mangerina.
Umpire—McDonald.

SCHAEFER AND SAYLOR.

BILLIARDISTS GOING TO PARIS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Jacob Schaefer, accompanied by British Saylor, the California professional, arrived here today, en route for Paris, where he will play in the billiard academies. Schaefer appeared to be in the best of health, and said that he was playing the game of his life. He expects to sail this week, and in the few days he is here will take part in several exhibition matches. Schaefer's contract calls for six months' play abroad, but he thinks that he will return in less time than that.

THE TURF NEWS.

PATCHEN AS A ROADSTER.

Joe Patchen, the famous pacer, is in New York, and it is said he will be raced by his owner, ex-Senator McCarthy of Brooklyn, on the New York speedway.

C. K. G. Billings of Chicago has several fast road pacers, which he would like to match against the famous stallion. Patchen has a mark of 2:01¼, and recently went a mile at Parkway on a half-mile track in 2:06½.

Slowly but surely the American trotting roadster and the American light road wagon and harness are invading England, says the New York Post. Edward Olcott of London, who has been on a business trip here, and has just left for home, bought three complete driving turnouts, including horses, wagons, harness and even the whips. He bought the bay four-year-old filly Geyana, a grand-daughter of Guy Wilkes, 2:15¼; Novabia, a daughter of the noted trotting sire Haroldmont, and Wild Rose, a fast brown mare by Accoll, son of Stamboul, 2:07½. They are all handsome and stylish.

WITH THE BOXERS.

ANOTHER FIGHT ARRANGED.

For reasons best known to the sporting fraternity, exhibitions of both pugilistic and wrestling prowess have of late lost much of their interest for the general public. The public hesitates to pay money to be entertained in this way, because of so many "fakes," and it is for this reason the local sporting organizations of standing are unwilling to risk much in securing attractions in either line.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club has a number of requests on hand from men who are trying to live down a past or advance one notch on the ladder of fame.

Among the latest aspirants is Jack Weday of Detroit. Weday is a welter-weight with a past and his friends say with a future.

In 1896 he fought a ten-round draw with Billy Gallagher; knocked out Pat Delaney in five rounds, and fought a twenty-round draw with Frank Purcell. He defeated Jack Hamlin in 1897, winning the welterweight championship of Michigan. Hamlin had just beaten Jack Moffatt of Chicago.

The next two years he spent in Salt Lake, meeting all comers, among them being Joe Cotton, Parson Green and Jim Williams.

Among his recent victories was the defeat of Fred Ast in twenty rounds, Jack Green in four rounds, and a twenty-round draw with Soldier Phil Green.

Billy Gallagher is anxious to meet Weday, and if present arrangements are carried out the men will "mix it" the evening of the 28th. Gallagher was at one time a star man in his class, but of recent years he has been very much off. Those who have followed his movements since his fight with Armstrong declare he has improved wonderfully, and will be able to put up a good fight.

RING NOTES.

Benny Yanger and "Young Corbett" will clash before the Denver Athletic Club the night of November 23.

The Tattersalls Club of Chicago has practically matched Joe Choynski and Joe Walcott. The latter is very slow and made a poor showing in his recent fight with Russell at Denver, although he won on a foul.

JEFFRIES MEANS BUSINESS.

WILLING TO TAKE RUHLIN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—As a result of a challenge issued Saturday by James Jeffries offering to fight Bob Fitzsimmons, Gus Ruhlin or Tom Sharkey, and a telegram from Fitzsimmons declining a match on account of engagements lasting until May next, Jeffries tonight made the following statement:

"If Fitzsimmons does not come to terms by Wednesday I shall arrange to meet Ruhlin or Sharkey on terms to be agreed upon. It is my intention to fight at least once a year. My choice of ground would be Nevada, for there we could go to a finish, and in such a contest there would be no doubt as to who is the better man."

Billy Madden, Ruhlin's manager, telegraphed tonight that Ruhlin will at once post a forfeit to bind the match.

CHAMPION WRESTLERS.

PONS TO MEET ROEBER.

Ernest Roeber, the Graeco-Roman wrestler, has decided to meet Paul Pons, the massive Frenchman, who came to this country recently for the purpose of meeting the best man in America. Roeber has been accused of being afraid of Pons, but this he denies and says that as he beat Olsen and won back the championship he was satisfied to rest on his laurels. But as many believe Olsen was again victorious, as the Danish papers and the Dane's friends contended, he has decided to engage in one more match.

Pons and Piening, the butcher boy, are to be matched in a few days, and Roeber agrees to meet the winner.

Piening is a small man beside Pons, whose height is 6 feet 5¾ inches, and who goes into the ring at 260 pounds, and is said to have thrown the redoubtable Youssouf, after two hours' struggle, at the Folies Bergeres last summer. Pons is the wrestling champion of all Europe. He won the championship by winning all the wrestling tournaments at Paris, Berlin, Rome and Vienna. His last victory was at Vienna; there were forty-four other competitors in the tournament, and it went on from day to day for one month. That was in June of this year. The second prize was gained by Kara Ahmed, a Turk. This manner of having athletic contests is a new thing in Europe, and it is a very good thing, for it prevents "faking." In France there is much interest in wrestling now.

FOOTBALL.

CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES.

There is considerable interest in football at present, and the prospect of some good games on the local gridiron is unusually bright. The new park at Washington Gardens is well adapted to football, and it is quite possible that the local elevens will be seen there this winter.

The best local teams appear to be the High School and the University of Southern California. A game between these two teams to decide the local championship is suggested—the winner to play the champion Pomona College team, and in turn the winner of this game to play the winner of the Berkeley-Stanford contest for the coast championship.

UNIVERSITY TEAM.

The students of the University of Southern California have formed a football team despite the efforts of a so-called "Executive Committee" to so hamper the management that the organization of an eleven would be impossible. The "Executive Committee" was selected by the students of the College of Liberal Arts to supervise the college athletics, and it immediately proceeded to usurp powers never given to it, and attempt to say that certain students would not be allowed to play on the team. After a month of squabbling, the committee has given up its nonsensical stand.

Much valuable time has been lost, however, and it seems hardly possible that the team from the Methodist College can be trained into form by Thanksgiving day, when it is scheduled to play against Pomona College for the intercollegiate championship of Southern California.

The showing last Saturday by the University eleven against the light team of Occidental College, made it manifest that much hard work must be done before the University eleven will be a credit to the institution it represents. Occidental and Pomona are to meet on the coming Saturday, and the result of that game will show the present superiority of the Claremont team over the University eleven.

The University team has been greatly strengthened by the addition of several experienced players from the medical and dental colleges, including Edwards, an old Occidental player, who won a place on the team at the University of Pennsylvania last year, and Smith, one of the star performers of the team sent out last season by the Belmont Preparatory School.

GOLF.

TEAM COMPETITION.

Only four games of the Country Club team contest have been played during the past week, Winsor Walton winning three points from W. W. Stephens (second game) the same number from F. Stevenson in their first game, and E. D. Silent being credited with one point and three points over T Craig.

The results to date total up thus: Walton, three games played, plus nine points; Silent, two games played, plus four points; Stephens, four games, minus one point; Stevenson, two games played, minus two points; Jevne, two games played, minus three points; Craig, five games played, minus seven points.

Walton, playing very strongly and steadily, has so far scored the highest possible number of points; and, while more serious work may be cut out for him when he meets the "Old Reliables," he may be pretty confidently depended upon to hold his own to the final outcome.

WEEKLY SWEEPSTAKES.

Not Maurice Grau and all his fabulously-salaried array could tempt fourteen enthusiasts from their Saturday fight. The three who this week added to their gutty stock were F. W. Burnett, 104-24-80; E. Bosworth, 118-36-82; S. P. Hunt, 98-15-83.

MIXED SINGLE.

Bruce, the Country Club's West Indian charioteer and favorite institution, last week became a Benedict, and a goodly proportion of the members took advantage of the occasion to show their appreciation of his unvarying courtesy and unfailing good nature by presenting him with a complete and extremely handsome set of solid silverware. Bruce was also the recipient of a number of individual presents.

SHARPSHOOTERS.

ROUND HILL SPORT.

The Los Angeles Sharpshooters held their regular semi-monthly shoot at Round Hill yesterday, and some good sport was enjoyed, although the scores were low on account of wind. There were three events, chief among them being the shoot for the medal offered by Outdoor Life of Denver. In that event there were seven contestants, the scores being as follows:

Belknap, 88; Singer, 86; Wescott, 83; Leighton, 83; Hauerwaas, 81; Frick, 76; Harper, 73.

Only three marksmen lined up for the championship class shoot, which was won by Leighton, who made a score of 201. Frick and Belknap tied for second place, each making 186.

Singer captured the first prize in the expert class shoot, with a score of 220. Other scores were as follows: Harper, 156; Hauerwaas, 174; Wescott, 184; Barett, 201; Singer, 220.

The Sharpshooters class brought out a field of six starters. The results follow: Mason, 172; Brockway, 142; Iddings, 166; Rishel, 176; Wilson, 155; Wellcome, 198.

"Dad" Wilson was the star performer in the next event, which he won with a score of 43 out of a possible 50. Wilson is the oldest shooter in the organization, and for that reason his work was unusually clever. Other scores were: Mason, 37; Wescott, 39; Richel, 39; Brockway, 42.

Billiards.

Entries for the three-cushion carom billiard trophy at the Saratoga Billiard Hall closes Tuesday. There are now ten entries, but several more are expected. The first game will be played Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Spectators are admitted free to all the games.

HIDALGO'S GOSSIP.

The winter game is in full blast at Oakland, and the ferry-boats are crowded to excess every afternoon. The opening handicap on the 3d was a fiasco, owing to the Fretter beating the gate, but as Favorines, the top-weight of that event, has since been beaten by such an ordinary horse as Formero, the race did not indicate as much class as was expected. Judge Brooks had the weights all right, however, and would have seen an eyelash finish but for The Fretter's caper.

So far, no information has been given out from the track till after the races are over; and that is a source of disgruntlement to pool-room proprietors elsewhere in the State. They do not know to what cause this is to be attributed, as the proprietors of both rooms in this city are on friendly terms with Col. Burns and Mr. Williams. My idea is that the San Francisco pool-rooms are the prime cause of the difficulty. In 1895 the management at Ingleside allowed a wire to be put in by the Western Union line at the track, on condition that no messages were to be carried to parties in San Francisco. This was observed by the Western Union, so far as the city was concerned, but the pool-rooms in Sacramento, Stockton and Los Angeles got the names of the first three horses in each race and posted them on the blackboards. Once there, they became public property and were telegraphed back to San Francisco by parties hired abroad for that purpose. It never averted a delay of more than twenty minutes to the San Francisco pool-rooms, and the gate receipts were greatly diminished at Ingleside and at Bay District (Oakland track was not in operation at that time;) and so the pool-room men got just what they wanted but a trifle later. All efforts to stop this were unavailing, and finally the Ingleside management closed their telegraph office altogether, and forbade the use of the telephone to any but their employés. Then the pool-room men hired a house near Ingleside, from the windows of which they could see the winning numbers by the aid of a strong field glass and telephone them into the pool-rooms. At Oakland, such a thing would be impossible, or at Tanforan either. If the pool-rooms in San Francisco were once closed and kept closed, the pool-rooms of other cities would have no difficulty in getting the news. As it is, it must make a difference of at least $600 per day in the receipts of the Western Union Company, who charge at the rate of $5 for each race.

Unless the pool-rooms can get the result of each race at once, so that the money drawn out can be played back upon the next race, there is no great money for them. They might be able to make a living at it and that is about all there is in it. The people of San Francisco voted very decidedly against licensing these establishments, at the recent election; and, therefore, there is a probability of all these places in San Francisco being closed up at an early date.

The war against American jockeys in England has been carried to such an extent that it is doubtful if any of them get their licenses renewed for next year, so far as England is concerned. However, there are other parts of Europe where racing is carried on. Cassius Sloan, a brother of the only Tod, has ridden in France this year with more than ordinary success; and he is a very inferior rider, to my way of thinking. If he can win on the continent, the other American riders in Europe can do still better, for he is the poorest of the lot. There is racing in Prussia, Austria and Hungary, all through the summer months; and Eddie Jones, who does not compare with Tod Sloan or either of the two Reiffs, has accepted a $6000 retainer to ride in Austria for the whole of next year. Few people in America have any idea of the extent of continental racing. The brothers De Reszke, the opera singers, have never less than twenty-five horses in training, while Alexander Baltazzi, who won the Derby of 1876 with Kisber (son of Buccaneer,) frequently has thirty. In France, the stables of MM. M. Blanc, Michel, Ephrussi, A. Lupin, Baron Schickler, P. Derville, Count Le Marois, Count De Juigne, Baron Rothschild and Prince Radiswill, generally have a total of two hundred horses among them, to say nothing of as many more in the hands of smaller owners. The American jockeys, therefore, will not suffer for the want of good employment in 1901.

And what does all this trouble come from? It does not emanate from the fact that American riders have won so many races in the past year, for most of their successful mounts have been on English horses. The truth is that they have broken up a ring of English jockeys that have done just as they pleased for years. Theirs was the Vanderbiltian motto, "The public be d—d." In 1892, this same Lord Durham, who was the first to raise this row about our American riders, gave utterance to a statement that there was a jockey ring which controlled the result of every great and important race run in England. When pressed further in reference to his statement, he named Charles Wood and Samuel Loates as the chief offenders. As Loates had ridden one winner of the Derby and as Wood had ridden two winners of the Derby, one of the Oaks and one of the St. Leger, this came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, but it was the truth, and each of those jockeys was suspended for seven years. During all of this time they lived in costly residences at Newmarket and spent an average of £600 a month. Now, where did they get all that money while earning nothing?

The riding of the American jockeys, Tod Sloan, Henry Martin, Rigby and the brothers Reiff, broke up that ring and gave the public honest rides for their money. They were young men, whom the bookmakers of London could not control as they had done other jockeys through the agency of Loates, Wood & Co. Of course, Sloan's frequenting the betting ring and buying yearlings at the Doncaster sales had a good deal to do with the Prince of Wales rescinding his contract. Jockeys are expressly forbidden either to bet or to own horses; and nobody knows that better than the aforesaid J. Todhunter Sloan.

The spectacle in England is that of a million of wealthy people being plucked from year to year by a little ring of about two thousand people, two-thirds of whom are Hebrews; and if anyone doubts the existence of minority rule, let him go over there and see for himself. He will see the ill-educated, and badly-dressed element (though sharp and shrewd beyond parallel,) triumphing over the element of noble birth and hereditary wealth, in three races out of every five. This element held winning cards in its hand, through the bribery of jockeys, until the American riders went over there, and, bent upon gaining reputation while acquiring money, resolved to win whenever they could. That is where the shoe pinches today. One half of the so-called nobility of England is under more or less obligation to the bookmakers or to the money-lenders with whom they are so intimately associated.

The Americans have carried off the $50,000 Jockey Club Stakes, this year, together with the Royal Hunt Cup at Ascot and the historical Doncaster Cup, first run for in 1801. They have also carried off the rich Clearwell Stakes and the Middle Park Plate twice, while the Australians won the Ascot Cup and the Suburban at Epsom, in addition to having won the Lewes Handicap (worth about $14,000) three times in succession. In 1898, a French horse carried off the Ascot Cup for the sixth time in the last half-century. It seems to me that, instead of raising a rumpus over the victories of foreign riders, the magnates of the British turf ought to be taking on a little proper pride over the international character of their racing.

PASADENA.

Plans for Next Tournament of Roses.

Tricks of "Spirit Mediums" Exposed.

Death of John Taylor—Golf at the Country Club—Henry Moore's Funeral.

PASADENA, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] Plans for the Tournament of Roses this season are still in a preliminary state; in fact, nothing but the barest outline has yet been [illegible] by the officers of the association [illegible] have charge of the affair, but [illegible] work and good generalship are [illegible] this year's festival should [illegible] success. Several weeks [illegible] the annual meeting of the [illegible] Association, F. C. Bolt [illegible] W. S. Staats were chosen president and vice-president, respectively, [illegible] found it impossible to serve, [illegible] became necessary to cast about [illegible] to carry on the work or let [illegible] go by default. While no [illegible] feels that the city can afford to abandon the flower festival [illegible] in years past proved so excellent an advertisement of the beauties of the city, and which has been [illegible] of great civil pride, it has [illegible] difficult matter to find business men who would sacrifice time and labor to the enterprise.

[illegible] importuning, however, F. [illegible] consented to take the [illegible] of the tournament, and [illegible] the privilege of naming his lieutenants. His plan is [illegible] a responsible man for the [illegible] of several departments, [illegible] give that man carte blanche [illegible] of his part of the [illegible] only restriction being that [illegible] for the different [illegible] exceeded. Mr. Weth[illegible] has named five of his assistants [illegible] two more. Those selected [illegible] F. H. Green, J. E. Jardine, [illegible] Robert S. Gaylord and E. [illegible]. As soon as the other [illegible] named the assignments [illegible] divisions will be made [illegible] of preparing for the tournament [illegible].

[illegible] chief desire is to make [illegible] artistic success, and to [illegible] proposed to have a distinctive parade, with no suggestion of advertising in the entire [illegible]. It is thought this decision [illegible] in enlisting the cooperation of a large number of owners [illegible] who will be able [illegible] equipages in a fitting [illegible] the divisions of the [illegible] of automobiles, [illegible], who is an expert [illegible] expected to make this [illegible] feature. It is probable the Americus Club will [illegible] to the gorgeousness [illegible].

[illegible] it is felt that this season will outrank in every way [illegible] tournaments.

TRICKS OF "MEDIUMS."

[illegible] Buck and Charles Tennison [illegible] Angeles appeared this evening [illegible] Hall in an exposé of [illegible] practiced by so-called [illegible] mediums. Mr. Buck, who [illegible] a Spiritualist, asserts that [illegible] of the "mediums" are [illegible] and gave the names of many Los Angeles members of the [illegible] who, he says, are frauds. Among [illegible] whom he charged with grafting [illegible] was John Hanley. This [illegible] brought to her feet the wife of [illegible] man, who defended her husband [illegible] with the speaker. Mr. [illegible] in his accusations, however, the war of words ended by Mrs. [illegible] and a number of her friends [illegible].

[illegible] Mr. Buck and his assistant [illegible] alleged "phenomena [illegible] at "seances" and [illegible] to show that most of the [illegible] of "spirits" [illegible] more than feats in legerdemain [illegible] the black art. Slate-writing, [illegible], ballot tests [illegible] of "spirits" [illegible] and instruments were [illegible] which these feats are [illegible] slate-writing, said Mr. [illegible] are prepared beforehand [illegible] of supposed spirits [illegible] than human forms [illegible] saturated in luminous [illegible] are made with [illegible] sealed letters to [illegible] by a sleight-of-hand [illegible] a cabinet and there [illegible] and answers [illegible] of "spirits" are [illegible] handkerchiefs with the [illegible] and a little [illegible] and one other supposed [illegible] were shown to be [illegible] magic.

[illegible] all this, Mr. Buck [illegible] many manifestations [illegible] spirit world," including [illegible], some of them [illegible] daylight. His mission, [illegible] remove the stigma of [illegible] Spiritualism and to [illegible] on a truthful basis. SANTA MONICA.

THE CUT-OFF ELECTION.

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] The indications today warrant the prediction that Monday's special election will result against separating the Ocean Park district from the municipality. Even among the South Side people there has been a marked change in sentiment within the past two or three weeks. The impression that separation would place the South Side in a less favorable position with respect to control of railroads, water companies and concerns transmitting electrical currents seems to be gaining ground.

Col. A. B. Hotchkiss, the father of the petition which led to the calling of the special election, declares with a show of pride in the child of his creation that the exclusion idea will win. The polls will be open from 6 a.m. till 5 p.m.

DEATH WON THE RACE.

Mrs. Carrie A. Strong, now in Santa Monica on a vacation, had a thrilling experience several months ago while attempting to take a dying soldier home to his mother and sweetheart. Mrs. Strong is a veteran of the Red Cross service. Early in the present year Duncan M. Haynes, a youth of 23, who had served with the American troops in Cuba and the Spanish-American war, was invalided to San Francisco from the Philippines, where he had fought under Gen. Lawton. He was afterward discharged from the Presidio in San Francisco, and he made his way to Los Angeles, where he became seriously ill from the disease contracted in the field. He realized that his end was approaching but he longed to see his mother and his betrothed before he died. His old home was in Shavertown, N. Y., but he had no means of obtaining transportation across the continent. The Red Cross Society of Los Angeles was appealed to, but the society had no funds for that purpose, and was unable to provide the much-desired traveling expenses.

In the hour of the young patriot's extremity a Red Cross worker became his good angel and advanced money to take him home. Mrs. Strong volunteered to accompany him, and in March he started on his eastward journey. While passing through Alabama the young man's condition grew rapidly worse. He said he did not expect to live long, but he wanted to reach home before he died, that he might marry the girl of his choice so she would receive a pension. In New York City, only sixty-one miles from the goal, Haynes was taken to a hospital, where he died.

RIVERSIDE COUNTY.

ACCUSED OF INCEST.

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] Thomas P. Jones, a Temecula blacksmith, was brought to Riverside last night by Deputy Sheriff Zimmerman and lodged in jail. He is charged with the crime of incest on one daughter and attempted incest on another. When the alleged facts were rumored about, there was some talk of violent measures and it was decided to bring Jones to Riverside.

CHURCH NOTES.

Rev. E. A. Healy of the University Church, Los Angeles, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church today.

Prof. D. H. Colcord preached at the First Congregational Church today.

Rev. D. R. Cohnery of Los Angeles preached at Arlington Presbyterian Church today.

Services were resumed in Calvary Presbyterian Church. On Wednesday evening the installation of Rev. Alexander Eakin as pastor of the church, will be conducted by a committee of the Los Angeles Presbytery.

Rev. D. L. McQuarrie of Redding has accepted a call to act as the stated supply for Arlington Presbyterian Church for six months.

RIVERSIDE BREVITIES.

Co. M's inspection will be conducted Monday of next week by Capt. Diss of Los Angeles. On Friday the company will engage in a regular State target shoot in charge of Lieut. G. C. Thaxter of Redlands.

J. R. Newberry has brought suit in the Superior Court against R. H. Rees and Esther H. Rees to quiet title to certain property in the town of Rincon.

The Perris Indian School football eleven defeated the Riverside High School team yesterday afternoon by the score of 18 to 5.

Ernest A. Brigham of Salton and Elizabeth J. Venable of Los Angeles were married here yesterday. Rev. E. F. Goff officiated.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM JUDGE.

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] Nothing new has developed in the Superior Judgeship situation. Both Republicans and Democrats claim the victory for their respective candidates by a margin of a few votes. Tomorrow the Supervisors will make the official count in Judge Campbell's court, which will end the matter, unless the defeated party takes an appeal to the Superior Court and has a new count of the whole county on the office in dispute made in open court.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

G. F. R. B. Perdew, one of the pioneers of San Bernardino, died yesterday after a long illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Seccombe. The deceased was 58 years of age and had resided in this valley since the early fifties. He leaves a widow and eight children—Mrs. Alec. McDonald, Miss Frances Perdew, F. B. Perdew and L. Perdew, of Riverside; Mrs. J. K. Schaffer of Fresno; Mrs. W. C. Seccombe, San Bernardino; H. B. Perdew, Highland and W. S. Perdew of Fresno. The funeral services were conducted this afternoon at the Seccombe residence.

SAN BERNARDINO BREVITIES.

Chief Engineer Hedges of the Arrowhead Reservoir Company is down from the mountains for a short stay. He says the company is pushing the completion of its water system as rapidly as possible, a large force of men being employed on the tunnels. A large hydraulicking plant, costing $4500, was recently installed at the site of the proposed dam for impounding the water and creating an immense reservoir.

Coroner Thompson held an inquest yesterday on Katrin Lugo, an Indian, who died Friday on the Ferguson ranch west of town. The woman was 100 years old, and had resided in San Bernardino and vicinity all her life. She had no medical attendance and died of old age.

The County Board of Education yesterday decided to hold the teachers' institute in December this winter, instead of in the spring.

The pioneers held a well-attended meeting yesterday afternoon. The next meeting of the society will be held November 17 at the County Hospital.

KERN COUNTY.

FIRE AT BAKERSFIELD.

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] Fire tonight destroyed the Grand stables and Eyraud's Hotel on Nineteenth and M streets. Loss about $20,000, with insurance for half that amount.

CLAREMONT.

FOOTBALL GAME.

CLAREMONT, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] A football game between San Bernardino and the Pomona College teams was played Saturday afternoon on the college campus. Pomona won the toss and chose the left goal. There were a number of good plays. The Pomona boys showed the result of training and did good work together. Both sides fumbled the ball quite badly. The most brilliant feature of the game was Cadwalader's kicking two goals from the field. The game was played in twenty-five-minute halves. Blount, referee. The final score was 39 to 0 in favor of Pomona.

CLAREMONT BREVITIES.

A concert will be given on Monday evening, November 19, under the auspices of the Women's Union, for the benefit of the organ fund. The new organ has safely reached Claremont. Several selections will be played upon it, and a vocalist and a reader from Los Angeles will also take part.

The Senior Middles gave a party in honor of the Senior Preps. in Holmes Hall on Saturday. The society-room was prettily decorated, and the members of the two classes had a jolly time.

From December 11 to 17 is the week of prayer. There will be daily noon meetings of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. At the Sunday evening services Mr. McLean will have charge of the one for men to be held in the Y.M.C.A. room, and Miss Gertrude Smith of the one held for women in the chapel.

Mrs. F. L. Ferguson gave a charming dinner in honor of Mr. Marston of San Diego and Mr. Blanchard of Santa Paula on Wednesday evening.

The regular meeting of the Science Club will be held in Science Hall Thursday evening, at 7 o'clock.

ANAHEIM.

BIG CROWD FOR TUESDAY NIGHT.

ANAHEIM, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] At a meeting of the committee which will have charge of the jollification by the Republicans of the northern part of the county in this city Tuesday evening, it was decided to illuminate Center street as never before. Japanese lanterns will be strung in great profusion, and colored fires burned without end. Abundant use is to be made of the Stars and Stripes for decorative purposes. Col. Alex Henry will have his famous campaign cannon on deck, and it will boom throughout the celebration. Until this campaign Col. Henry and his cannon were never identified with other political demonstrations than those of the Democratic party. The Columbia Marching Club, with a large delegation of Santa Ana citizens, will be present, and efforts are also being made to secure the attendance of "Teddy's Terrors" from Los Angeles. Several bands have been hired.

ANAHEIM BREVITIES.

An effort is being made to secure the establishment of a public library in the town. Coöperation with the High School is the plan suggested.

A son of M. L. Edwards, residing southwest of town, had a leg broken yesterday. He fell from a wagon as it was jolting over a rough piece of road, and his leg was caught under a wheel.

SANTA CATALINA ISLAND.

GASOLINE LAUNCH AFIRE.

AVALON, Nov. 11.—[Regular Correspondence.] Two young men from Los Angeles who have the use of a little power launch owned by H. P. Wendt, called the "Alligator," had an experience last evening. They discovered that there was a small leak somewhere, as water seemed to be entering the boat. One of the planks was taken up and a match was struck, when in an instant the whole interior of the launch was ablaze. What they mistook for water was gasoline, which had leaked from the supply tank. As quick as lightning the blaze extended from stern to bow. There were two cans of gasoline aboard, which were thrown overboard, while the young men jumped into their skiff "muy pronto," and pushed off, expecting the tank to explode. As it did not immediately blow up, some one rowed up near enough to discover that the flames had melted the solder from the faucet, and there was no further danger, as the tank was empty. Attention was then turned to saving the boat, and by the application of plenty of water to the woodwork it was kept from igniting.

CATALINA BREVITIES.

One of the finest specimens of glass sponge yet seen here was brought up by Frank Josephs while fishing for cod in about a hundred fathoms of water at Clemente yesterday. It is about two feet in length and has a diameter of one foot. It is hollow and looks as though it had been constructed for a nest. It is composed of minute spicules of silica, which look like spun glass.

The yellowtail fishing from the wharf remains very good. Among the many fish caught yesterday was one by Dr. Bishop which weighed thirty-six pounds.

The target practice of the battleships lying in San Diego Harbor was so plainly heard last Thursday on San Clemente Island that the few persons there were almost thrown into a panic, not knowing at the time the source of the terrible explosions.

James B. Lankershim, the Los Angeles capitalist, came over today to enjoy a quiet rest at Catalina.

W. E. Schmidt and wife of Lincoln, Neb., are guests at Hotel Metropole.

George A. Cheney, steward of Hotel Metropole, has returned to his duties after a month's vacation.

GIRL PUPILS POISONED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 11.—Two hundred and fifty girls, pupils of the Moiney Institute, a boarding school patronized exclusively by the nobility, were taken sick with evident symptoms of poison after dinner Friday evening. It is reported that two have died, but that the others have recovered. The poisoning is attributed to faulty metallic cooking utensils.

SHOOTING AT MUSKOGEE.

MUSKOGEE (I. T.) Nov. 11.—Thomas Owens, District Attorney, shot and fatally wounded Noah Watts today, two bullets taking effect in the breast. Both are young men. Owens claims self-defense.

LIMITATIONS.

J. M. B. writes: I came from Alabama eight years ago, and before leaving I signed a note with a firm that had been doing business there, but closed out. One of the men came to California; the other member of the firm remained in the State. I supposed the note had been paid, but it seems it has not. Can they make me pay it, or has it been outlawed having been given nine years ago?

Answer: The note is barred; but morally it ought to be paid. The chief object of limitation laws is to guard against State claims incapable of being proved or disproved. However, you can escape payment, if you can rest easy under it.

BREACH OF TRUST—OCCUPATION TAX.

A, B and C are friends, A lives in California, B in Colorado; B gets into trouble and is arrested, his friend C assists him all he can; but can do nothing financially. B is in jail and instructs C to write to A for assistance. A sends C $100 to be used in B's defense, B is convicted and is sent to prison and instructs C to send $50 left of the $100 to A. C keeps the money himself. Is there any way to get the money or prosecute him?

Is the taxing of agents selling patent medicines unconstitutional? Has not the Supreme Court of the United States so decided; if so, what course should one pursue who cannot afford to pay the tax, which is $200 per year?

Answer: C's keeping the money is a breach of trust merely, and cannot be criminally prosecuted, even under embezzlement statutes. Your only remedy is to sue him and recover it in that way, if possible; if not, you can only let him alone.

A tax on selling patent medicine is not unconstitutional any more than a tax on any other business. I regard the whole matter of occupation taxing as contrary to the spirit and intent of our system of government. It ought to be abolished, except where necessary for the purpose of police regulations. But like most taxation, when once it gets hold, occupation taxes are not likely to let go wherever they have fastened their tentacles.

EXCHANGE OF REAL ESTATE BY MAIL.

W. E. T. writes: Another man and myself have talked about exchanging properties, and became interested enough to examine one another's properties; (mine is located in the East; his here.) He finally mails me a proposition for exchange with a time limit for acceptance, and further stipulates and orders me in case his proposition is accepted by me to go ahead and bring down an abstract, etc., and order such other preparations made that deeds may be exchanged through my agent in the East. I accepted his proposal, and fully complied with all his other requests. I mailed my letter to his address, and it arrived there four (4) days ahead of his stipulated time. I then let matters rest awaiting final settlement, but to my surprise my letter is returned through the postal authorities, as not found. I then became suspicious, feeling sure that my man had undergone a change of mind, and had not called for his mail or else resealed it and returned to the postoffice—all previous mail had been sent and received at the same address. I then sent a registered letter to the same address, and the same name, and have a receipt from the postal authorities with his signature attached, proving that my other letter was correctly addressed. His postoffice stamp is on the returned envelope with the date of receiving the same.

I finally received a telegram stating that he cannot accept the proposition; it's his own proposition he cannot accept; he gives me no other reason. I would like to know if I can compel him to abide by the terms of his proposition, or compel him to reimburse me for expenses, he has put me to; or what is best to do? I have complied minutely with everything.

Answer: The statute of frauds requires all contracts concerning the exchange of real estate to be in writing in order to become valid and binding. But a proposition sent by mail, the letter being signed, constitutes a contract in writing valid and binding under the statute. And the acceptance dates from the mailing of the letter, and is enforcible even if the letter containing it should be miscarried in the mails and not received. It is, however, evident that the other party did receive your letter of acceptance. And you can enforce the contract, or recover damages for its non-performance, if any can be proved. It is doubtful, however, whether you can obtain a judgment for the expenses incurred in the progress of negotiations.

POT SHOOTING IN CALIFORNIA.

C. G. G. asks: Is there a law in California against pot-shooters, or in any of the other States; or if there is not a law forbidding hunters to make pot-shots; is there not any reason why there could not be such a law and have it enforced?

Have Chinamen in this country the same privilege of voting as other men?

Does Egypt pay tribute to Turkey and belong to England?

Answer: Pot shooting is not forbidden by the game law of California (Session Laws, 1897.) There is nothing to hinder the enactment and enforcement of such a law in any State. The control of hunting is wholly within the discretion of the Legislature.

Chinamen who are naturalized have the same right of voting which others have. Some are voters. They are few however. And the exclusion act prevents much increase.

As to Egypt, it does not belong to England, nor pay tribute to Turkey.

RESULTING TRUST.

A. P.—A payment of part of the purchase money of lands, the legal title to which is held by another, carries with it by resulting trust a proportionate equitable estate in the land purchased, which may be enforced in equity against a subsequent purchaser of the legal title under execution, who took with notice of the equity. But the circumstances of the case must determine the point whether the furnishing of the money was a payment of the purchase money, or a mere loan to the immediate purchaser. In the latter case, there is no resulting trust.

RESIDUARY DEVISE—LAPSE.

S. P. D.—Where there is a valid residuary devise, the property mentioned in a lapsed devise goes to the residuary legatee, and not to the heirs, unless a contrary intent is plainly expressed in the will. And no particular form of expression is necessary to constitute a residuary devise. It is sufficient if the intention of the testator is plainly expressed in the will, that the surplus of the estate after payment of the debts and legacies shall be taken by a person designated.

TORTS.

S. M. L.—The liability of tort-feasors for the same tort, is joint and several. They may be sued jointly in one action, or severally in different actions, and several judgments may be rendered either in several actions, or in a joint action. No bar arises by the mere rendition of several judgments; or until satisfaction in some form is received, or what the law deems an equivalent.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

W. R. A.—An agreement not to plead the statute of limitations is a mere agreement to forego a personal privilege of the debtor. Such agreement is not opposed to any public policy; but is, on the contrary, a valid agreement which sound morals require should be enforced.

Statutes of limitation are intended to prevent stale demands from springing up after long periods of time, and not as defenses to just demands of recent origin; although, being a general rule, they really uphold defenses clearly within their scope, however unjust, yet they are to be strictly construed and when subject to doubt, disallowed. (127 Cal. 107.)

SUCCESSION.

T. K. writes: A husband has property in Minnesota. He was in a good business. He removed to California and purchased a home here, worth say about three thousand dollars ($3000.) There is a son by a former marriage, of the husband; no children by the second marriage. Money has been made since the second marriage, but the main bulk of property, the husband had when he remarried. Will you please tell me what portion would the wife possess of the property in case of the husband's death without a will? Would the property in Minnesota be governed by the laws of that State, or by the laws of California, the home of the husband and wife?

Answer: The wife would have one-half and the son one-half of the California property.

As to the property in Minnesota, if it is real estate, it would be governed by the Minnesota laws; if it is personal property, its distribution would be governed by the laws of California, because personal property is reckoned to belong to the domicile of the owners.

She Took the "Antique" Off.

[New Orleans Times-Democrat:] "New Orleans is still a fine hunting ground for antique furniture," said a local auctioneer, "and scores of northern tourists prowl over the field every winter looking for treasure trove in that line. It is lots of fun, and sometimes they pick up a good thing. In that connection I can tell you rather a quaint little story. Last fall a Boston woman, who is well known here and a great collector of antiques, was looking up an address in Ursuline street, and stopped at a certain house to make some inquiries. While talking with a widow and her daughter who live on the premises, she caught sight of a beautiful old Dutch cabinet in the front room. The doors were ornamented with carved figures of the apostles, and the brass hinges and lock were in themselves fine examples of early eighteenth century workmanship. The Boston visitor was greatly interested, of course, but she was in a hurry, and, keeping the address, promised to call again and make an offer for the curio. A day or two later, however, she was summoned north, and it was only last month that she wrote to say she would be in the city shortly, and would be around to have a talk about the cabinet. This letter greatly excited the widow and her daughter, and they decided it would be a good idea to furbish up the old piece of furniture before the stranger arrived. Accordingly they scrubbed it with lye and pumice stone until they removed all the mellow lustre of age; put on nice, strong hinges they bought at a hardware store around the corner, and equipped the door with a patent Yale lock. Then they touched up the apostles with pink enamel paint, and gave the whole thing several coats of shiny varnish. When the Boston connoisseur arrived they met her with beaming smiles. 'Yes, we still have the cabinet,' said the widow, 'but you wouldn't hardly know it—it looks exactly like new!' The visitor gave a glance at the thing, and came near fainting in her tracks. She is an old customer of mine, and when she told me the story she shed briny tears. She declared those salmon pink apostles would haunt her to the last day of her life. I understand the widow and her daughter were highly indignant over their failure to effect a sale. They felt they had been imposed on somehow."

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

AT THE THEATERS.

BURBANK—Catherine.
ORPHEUM—Vaudeville.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

New Clubhouse.

The California Club talks of building a new clubhouse and will hold a special meeting Saturday evening to discuss the advisability of purchasing a lot.

Inquest Today.

The Coroner will hold an inquest at 9:30 o'clock this morning at the undertaking establishment of Booth & Boylson, on South Broadway, over the body of Dan Lynch, who committed suicide Saturday by taking morphine.

Independent Candidate.

The independent voters of the Sixth Ward will today file a petition placing in nomination for member of the School Board from that ward, Rev. F. H. Bodkin. Mr. Bodkin is the editor of the California Independent.

Cigarettes to Blame.

The evil of cigarette smoking was strongly impressed yesterday upon Richard Story, who lives at No. 485 Jackson street. His left hand was wrapped up in a turpentine poultice for a bad finger, when a match struck to light a cigarette, ignited the bandages and burnt the hand severely.

Gasoline Again.

An alarm of fire was sent in at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from box 37 for a blaze in the three-story lodging-house at No. 460½ North Main street, owned by the R. M. Baker estate and operated by E. W. Gilbert. A disordered gasoline stove caused the trouble, but very little damage was done.

Street-car Collision.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning a University electric car going east on Tenth street ran into a buggy at the corner of Broadway, and capsized it. In the rig were Miss Helen Bailey of No. 436 West Twenty-eighth street and Miss Leola Allen of No. 933 Wall street, and both were thrown out, but fortunately escaped with a few bruises. The buggy was demolished, but the horse came out of the wreck intact.

For Young Men.

The Young Men's Christian Association will observe the week beginning yesterday as a week of prayer for young men. This is according to previous usage and recommendation of the International Committee. Special meetings led by William Cleaver will be held each evening ta 9 o'clock, lasting half an hour. All young men, whether members of the association or not, are invited to attend these meetings.

Huber not Crazy.

Report came from the County Hospital last night, concerning Ed. Huber, who has been confined there since Friday night, pending an examination before a lunacy commission, to the effect that he is not insane. The insanity complaint against Huber was sworn to by his brother-in-law, Frank Hicks, owing to Huber's violent actions at the home of his sister, Mrs. O. W. Childs, at Eleventh and Main streets. The doctors who have examined the man say that his outburst was due to a bad temper and not to a deranged mind.

BREVITIES.

Remember the Needy. The Good Samaritan—formerly Capt. Fraziers—is now a department of the Bethlehem Benevolent Board, Vignes and Ducommun streets. Ring up John, 26, and all donations will be collected. This Board, co-operating with the Associated Charities, now cares for nearly all the out-door poor of the city. It solicits new and cast-off clothing, and shoes for men, women, children and infants. Beds, cots, bedding, furniture, food supplies, vegetables, fruits, groceries, canned goods, meats, etc. Reading matter, books, magazines and illustrated papers, boxes and broken lumber for men's wood yard. Bethlehem Free Employment Bureau, can furnish men, women or young people for any common labor, excepting house servants. Tel. John 26. Send friendless and destitute women to 426 Vignes street. The Good Samaritan will help you make some family glad at Thanksgiving time.

Although The Times business office is open day and night, year in and year out, when it is not possible to bring your ads. in, you can telephone them in at any hour of the day or night at the standard "liner" rate, 1 cent per word per insertion.

The annual meeting of the Associated Charities, for reading report and electing a central council, will be held in room 11, Court House, Tuesday November 13 at 2 p.m.

Dr. R. E. McLean, the eminent hair physician of San Francisco, will be at the Bennett Toilet Parlors from November 12 to 17. Consultation free.

ELECTRICITY AND RHEUMATISM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A Canadian physician who is engaged in making original investigation into the uses of electricity as applied to human ailments, says for many years he has been in the habit of treating many cases of supposed muscular rheumatism by the insertion of fine steel needles. The sensations developed by this treatment are probably very much like those induced by the Russian method of curing rheumatism by the application of a particularly fiery breed of ants to the part affected, although the actual physiological process of the respective treatments may differ. At all events the advocate of the electrical method claims that it is necessary to vary the number of needles according to the extent of the affected parts, and as a general rule the seat of pain would indicate the precise place and extent to which the needles should be used. He advocates their being stuck into the muscles for one to two minutes. It is claimed that this application relaxes the previous hard, tense condition, which often approximates tetany, and the patient is able at once to use his muscles. It is argued that in such cases there is an abnormal storage of electricity in the tissues, and it may be stored as the result of sudden draught and cold. When the inserted steel needles are touched, the electrical accumulation is discharged, and immediate relief follows.

BEAT HIS WIFE

And Assaulted His Mother-in-law Because She Interfered—Mexican Laborer in Trouble.

Yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock a Mexican laborer, Abundio Lopes by name, was engaged in beating his wife at their domicile on New High street near Ord. The mother of Señora Lopes chanced on the scene, and remonstrated with her son-in-law on his severity with his spouse. The whipping, in process of administration to the younger woman, was a mild one, consisting of a few slaps and pinches, but immediately upon the advent of the mother-in-law, things got exciting.

Lopes became enraged at the interference, and, seizing a small iron bar, he struck at the would-be peacemaker, who immediately started to flee. Thoroughly angry, Lopes increased his armament by picking up a small kitchen knife and set in pursuit. Into New High street and down that thoroughfare fled the mother-in-law, screaming for help, and after her came Lopes with the iron bar in one hand and the knife in the other.

The old woman fell near the corner of Ord street, and Lopes brutally kicked her in the abdomen and struck her on the head with the bar. The melée was stopped by the appearance of Police Officer Arguello, who arrested the irate son-in-law, and had him taken to the Police Station, where he was booked for assault with a deadly weapon.

HEAVEN-MADE MATCHES.

As Revealed By a Los Angeles Medium for One Dollar.

An enterprising spiritualist of this city has perfected arrangements to get straight tips on the matches that are made in heaven. Judging from the number of matches entered into hereabouts, in which the devil and the divorce court seem to have had a hand, this ought to fill a long-felt want.

It is a strictly ahead-of-the-date marriage bureau. Mr. Cupid not only selects for you a suitable husband, and brings you together, but makes him love you to distraction, and trot you along to the altar whether he wants to or not. This is because the Cupid man and Fate work hand in hand. It must be nice to have a stand-in with Fate.

The marriage bureau is located in a suite of rooms in a lodging-house on Spring street, of the kind inhabited from top to toe by mediums. Cupid, besides running the marriage bureau, also operates an ordinary medium shop.

He is a fat little man blazing with diamonds; yes, reg'lar diamonds, and talks with a strong Cockney accent.

"Do you want a reading?" he asks enthusiastically.

You want a reading; leastwise you think you might want a reading if you knew how it worked.

So you sit down at a bare table opposite the little Cockney man, and he covers his eyes with one chubby hand in a very spiritual manner. You fill in the interval figuring out how many other things you might have done with the dollar.

"Uncle John" and "Aunt Mary," the most outrageous loafers of the spiritual world, come hovering around you and take unwarranted liberties with your first name, considering that you never heard of them before.

At last the topic of communication swings around to marriages.

The little Cockney grabs your hand on the table and marks on it with a lead pencil.

"Do you see that letter Hay?" he asks. "Maybe you can't see it, though, cause you ain't a clairvoyant, but it's there," he adds thoughtfully. "Well letter Hay is Harthur or Handrew or somebody. Well, anyhow, you ain't goin' to marry him. It wasn't meant that you should."

This is getting round to it. He tells you with unction of his own picturesque career as a squire of dames in the days of his youth.

"But she wasn't meant for me. A spiritualist told me the one as was meant for me, and Hi know her the minute Hi set heyes on her, though Hi had to go to South Hamerica to find her."

And he courteously spits on his fingers and rubs "Harthur" off your hand, and presumably out of your affections.

"You'll know the right one when he comes along the minute you set heyes on him.

"Lots of laidies," he observes with engaging naivete, come 'ere and get me to bring 'em a husband. Just look 'ere."

He holds up a book, and begins to run through it.

"'Ere's a laidy wants a man between 25 and 45, dark and with a little money. 'Ere's another one wants an old man. It's funny how many girls comes to me and says they want old men. Oh, these women, they're a queer lot."

"It's only a dollar," he says at parting, "if there is anything I can do for you."

But if an unkind fate has denied you Harthur or Handrew and you are going to know the right one the minute you set heyes on him, the services of the little fat Cupid, overstocked with H's, would seem to be superfluous.

He claims to have a large number of names on his list, almost all women, and many young women. He says that he has brought about many matches—he and the spirits.

C. B. Kaufman, a prominent railroad man of San Francisco, is one of the advance guard of railroaders who arrived yesterday to attend the Roadmasters' Convention this week. Mr. Kaufman is at the Van Nuys.

George McManee, Pacific Coast manager of the big dry goods house of Young, Smythe, Field & Co., of Philadelphia, is around saying "hello" to his Los Angeles customers. Mr. McManee says the business outlook in California was never better. In common with most mercantile travelers, he rejoices over the triumphant reëlection of President McKinley, which he thinks presages four years more of prosperity. Mr. McManee's headquarters while in the city is at the Nadeau.

Mark R. Plaisted of the Fresno Evening Democrat is in the city endeavoring to explain to the local Bryanites how it happened that the Democrats made such a poor showing this year in even such a Democratic stronghold as Fresno county. Plaisted edited a Democratic paper at Riverside until nearly everybody in that county began to vote the Republican ticket. He tried Fresno then as a more congenial field for the promulgation of his Bryanistic views, but it looks now as though the Republican tidal wave had engulfed him there.

W. V. Bryan of the Weekly Traveler of San Francisco is at present in the city looking after the interests of that publication in Southern California. On the day following the election Mr. Bryan addressed a telegram reading as follows to William J. Bryan: "I sincerely congratulate you on the overwhelming defeat of William J. Bryan." This telegram was forwarded not to Lincoln, Neb., but to San Francisco, to the sender's father, whose name is identical with that of the late candidate for the Presidency. The San Francisco Bryans are not in sympathy with their Nebraska namesake.

"BLIND PIG" RAIDED.

Police officers in civilian clothes raided a "blind pig" last night about 10 o'clock at a disreputable house conducted by Vera Mansfield at No. 143 North Main street. A miscellaneous cargo of liquors was hauled to the Police Station in the patrol wagon, and the proprietress was booked for selling liquor without a license. She was released after putting up $50 cash bail, for her appearance in the Police Court today.
